Probing Mystery Blaze Last Night At National Capitol Building

SUNNY CALIFORNIA COULD STAND SOME RAIN, WILL ADMITS

(Special To The News)
BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Jan. 4.—We have our fun out here joking about the east mired down in snow and galoshes, panics and poor coaching, while we, bask in sunshine, roses and fine football. But let's be good sports and admit it, boys, we need rain. This is not just an admission, I will make it a motion, that it be called a prayer. Take it from a tax payer, it hasn't rained here since Noah took two of every kind of moving picture actors into the ark with him. Moths have lived on raincoats for years. Friends, we would welcome the Johnstown flood right now.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

P. S.—California papers go ahead and print this, and show 'em we can take it on the chin and grin.

PA NEW OBSERVES

After a few days vacation King Winter returned last evening overing local streets with a slippery coating of snow and ice. Chains were a necessity and those who did not drive carefully last night and this morning paid the penalty in many instances with damaged machines.

After examining the new calendars for 1930, Pa New finds that Friday the 13th, will occur but once during the coming year. This will be during the month of June.

Pa New notes that a great many auto licenses are beginning to appear with a double set of letters in the front. Most of those issued before Christmas had the letter in the front or between the first and last two numbers.

There has been a drop of 37 degrees in the temperature since late Thursday official figures at the local weather observing station show Thursday afternoon the figure stood at 53 while this morning the mercury had dropped down to 18 degrees.

Commencement for the senior high school comes this month. A large number of students members of the graduating class, are making last minute arrangements for invitations and commencement night caps and gowns have already been purchased.

Pa New is in receipt of a communication from Kelan H. Gibson, Euclid avenue, in which he tells of an incident which happened to his sister and family on the Sunday after Christmas. The sister and family were returning to their homes in Johnstown. When near Rose Point, they noticed that a bag which contained clothing and toys, had slipped off the car. They looked back just in time to see two men get out of a Chevrolet coupe, pick up the bag and drive on towards New Castle. They placed an ad in the News, telling about their loss but the finder of the bag did not return the articles or notify them of the fact. The clothes were for a three month old baby and boys of eight and eleven years. Mr. Gibson's sister is very anxious to have the articles returned to them. Perhaps the finder would be kind enough to get in touch with Mr. Gibson by calling 4265-W.

National Capitol Room Is Guttred By Fire, Probe Starts

Mystery Blaze Guts House Document Room And Artist's Model Quarters

CONGRESS MAY START INQUIRY

Second Conflagration In Washington Causes Consternation Among Officials

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—A searching investigation into the cause of the mystery fire which gutted a portion of the House document room and the artist's model room of the National Capitol early last night, was instituted today by David Lynn, architect of the Capitol.

Congress may also be brought into the inquiry as a result of the rumbling growing out of the blaze, it was indicated. Lynn expressed the opinion that congressional committees concerned with the management of the Capitol may inquire into the fire.

The damage was variously estimated at from $1,000 to $3,000, but the full extent was not expected to be determined until during the day when danger of seepage of water through the five-foot walls of the Capitol had passed.

Artist Is Rescued

Charles Moberly, the Capitol artist, who was carried out of a smoke-filled model room unconscious was reported to be recovering, and Lynn expected a conference with him today to furnish some information which may lead to a definite determination of the cause of the blaze.

The artist was treated by Dr. George W. Calvert, congressional physician for two hours after he was rescued by firemen, during this period he talked incoherently at times.

Because the house document and artist's model rooms were separated only by a thin partition it was difficult to determine just where the fire started. Lynn, after an examination said that unquestionably it started in the model room.

Not Electric Wires

Firemen told him after the fire that the electric wiring was in order and the fire could not have originated from that source. Moberly stated that the fire did not smoke cigars, but at times smoked cigars.

The Capitol fire, coming on the heels of the Christmas Eve blaze which damaged the White House offices, gave rise to many rumors. Tales that enemies of the government had resorted to fire, spread, but such rumors were promptly discounted by officials.

Discovered By Police

Great crowds thronged the Capitol plaza soon after the blaze was discovered.

New Officials In Charge On Monday

Oath Of Office Will Be Administered At Court House On Monday Morning

Many friends of incoming county officials expect to be present at court on next Monday morning at 9 o'clock, when the oath of office will be administered by Prothonotary R. M. Campbell.

The new officials who will take office are Frank N. Johnston, sheriff; Miss Jeannette Hutton, register and recorder; John Powers, district attorney; Howard E. Leslie and William Siewander, jury commissioners.

After being sworn in as district attorney, John Powers, will name "Peck" Lee of Ellwood City as county detective and the oath will also be administered to him. Frank N. Johnston will name as his deputies William M. Reynolds, A. T. Venditto and Russell McBride.

H. M. Reynolds, who retires from the sheriff's office, will soon move into his new house which is being erected on the New Castle-New Bedford road. "Buck" has led a busy life for many years and expects to take it a little easier when he becomes a resident of Union township.

J. Elder Bryan, who has completed a very successful term as district attorney, will continue the practice of law.

MOVIE COUPLE COME TO PARTING

After six years of married life, Billie Dove, beautiful screen player, and her director-husband, Irvin Willat, shown here, have come to the parting of the ways. Although they "have reached the point where they cannot agree," Miss Dove declares she is not planning to institute divorce proceedings, but admits she and her husband have decided to separate.

Political Leaders Of Pennsylvania In Session Today

Spotlight Of Keystone State Politics Turned On Philadelphia Meeting Today

Vare Forces Insist On Naming Francis Shunk Brown As Governor Candidate

(International News Service)
PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—The spotlight of Pennsylvania politics was turned on Philadelphia today with the assembling here of numerous minor and major Republican leaders of the State.

Gubernatorial aspirants cast eager eyes towards the scheduled meeting tonight of Senator Joseph R. Grundy, Governor John S. Fisher and W. L. Mellon, former chairman of the Republican State Committee, at a dinner given in the home of Jay Cooke at Chestnut Hill. Cooke, a prominent banker, who served as chairman of the ways and means committee of the National Republican Committee for Pennsylvania during the Hoover presidential campaign. He denied there is any political significance to the dinner, but when the leaders of the three big factions in the state get together there is bound to be political significance in their meeting in the opinion of the ordinary layman.

Sudden Death Of James Buchanan

East Side Resident Taken Suddenly Ill At Coal Mine This Forenoon

James A. Buchanan, aged 58, of 802 Lathrop street, died suddenly this morning at the home of E. C. Porter on the New Castle-Ellwood road. Mr. Buchanan was employed in the Porter-Grove coal mine near the Ellwood road.

He went to work this morning as usual, but shortly after arriving at the mine complained of being ill. He quickly relapsed into unconsciousness and was carried to the home of Mr. Porter. A physician was summoned but Mr. Buchanan was dead when he arrived.

So far as can be learned Mr. Buchanan was in his usual health when he left for the mine this morning. Mr. Buchanan was a well known and highly respected citizen of the East Side. He is survived by his wife and five children. The children are Howard, Lawrence, Ruth, Raymond and Catherine all of whom are at home.

He is also survived by two brothers, William and Charles Buchanan of Grove City. Announcement of funeral will be made later.

DEATH RECORD

James A. Buchanan, 802 Lathrop street.

Negro Confesses Baltimore Crimes Police Report

(International News Service)
BALTIMORE, Jan. 4.—Dying from bullet wounds, Lorenzo Price, negro, confessed to police, they said, he shot and killed Reuben Heyman, 22, Thursday night and criminally attacked his girl companion, Mrs. Dorothy M. Burgess, 24. She identified him as her attacker.

Price was captured late yesterday after a gun duel with a policeman. He was shot several times.

The murder and attack occurred in the outskirts of the city where the negro commanded Heyman to drive when he decoyed them in their parked automobile in a city park.

Radical Shake-Up Is Proposed For Prohibition Bills

Every Branch Of Government Alert To Stem Tide Of Criticism Toward Enforcement

SENATOR BORAH LEADS ACTION

For First Time In Years Cooperation Assured To Enforce Dry Laws

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Spurred into feverish activity by the storm of violent criticism over the way prohibition is being enforced, every branch of the government was moving today toward a radical shake-up in the system, designed to get results and to quiet the furor.

Executive, legislative and judicial branches were all in a turmoil of frantic endeavor to accomplish something, and for the first time in years there appeared to be some cooperation in their efforts.

Five New Developments

The developments were these:

1. The treasury has suddenly become "hard-boiled" in the matter of gun-play enforcement. Secretary Mellon justified the coast guard's killing of three men aboard the rum runner "Black Duck" and announced a policy of "real warfare" against smugglers, declaring "smuggling cannot be stopped without violence."

2. A reduction of 15 per cent has been ordered by the treasury department in the production of industrial alcohol for 1930. This means about 30,000,000 gallons less alcohol for this year. It is the diversion of this alcohol to bootlegging channels that Senator Borah (R) of Idaho considers the greatest leakage in prohibition enforcement and "the greatest disgrace."

3. The department of justice has decided to take two highly important questions to the supreme court for determination—one as to whether the purchaser of liquor can be prosecuted under existing law and the other as to whether a person ordering liquor by telephone or telegraph cannot be prosecuted for conspiracy to transport it.

4. Congress is getting ready to order the transfer of enforcement from the treasury to the department of justice, and to create a joint committee to tighten up and codify some 25 existing prohibition statutes.

5. The national capital itself is to be made the experimental guinea pig of enforcement endeavor. Attorney (Continued On Page Two)

Seven Youth Meet Death In Crash Of Bus

Nine Other Youngsters Are Seriously Injured In Ohio Accident

CROWD RETURNING FROM SCHOOL GAME

Accident Occurs Near Wooster, Ohio—More Of Injured May Die

(International News Service)
WOOSTER, O., Jan. 4.—The joy of a basketball victory turned to the deepest sorrow at the village of Burbank, near here, today, as it prepared to bury seven of its young boys, who were instantly killed late last night when the bus in which they were riding was struck by a fast Pennsylvania train at Shreve. Nine other youngsters were seriously injured in the accident.

The first report of the tragedy said that it occurred during a sleet storm. This proved to be unfounded today, however, when investigating officials found that the crossing was perfectly dry.

A high wind was tearing through the countryside at the time, however, and it may have prevented the driver of the bus from hearing the blasts of the train whistle and the crossing warning bells.

All of the bodies were badly mangled and identification was not made until today.

The Dead Are

Willard Baker, 14.
Claude Repp, 16.
Forest Grubb, 17.
Wilbur Grubb, 16.
Wayne Lehman, 15.
Emil Tymic, 16.
Eugene Talley, 17.

The Nine Injured Are:
Edith Repp, fractures of both legs, possible internal injuries, which will probably cause her death.
Charles Packard, back injuries and severe bruises.
Donald Lehman, severe cuts and bruises.
Alice West, body injuries.
Ellen Cowhick, serious cuts and bruises.
Lola Talley, a sister of one of the dead, broken leg.
Grace Flory, seriously cut and bruised.
Maurice Lenz, coach of the basketball team, scalp injuries.
Joseph Baker, 55, the driver of the bus, serious cuts and shock.

Returning From Game

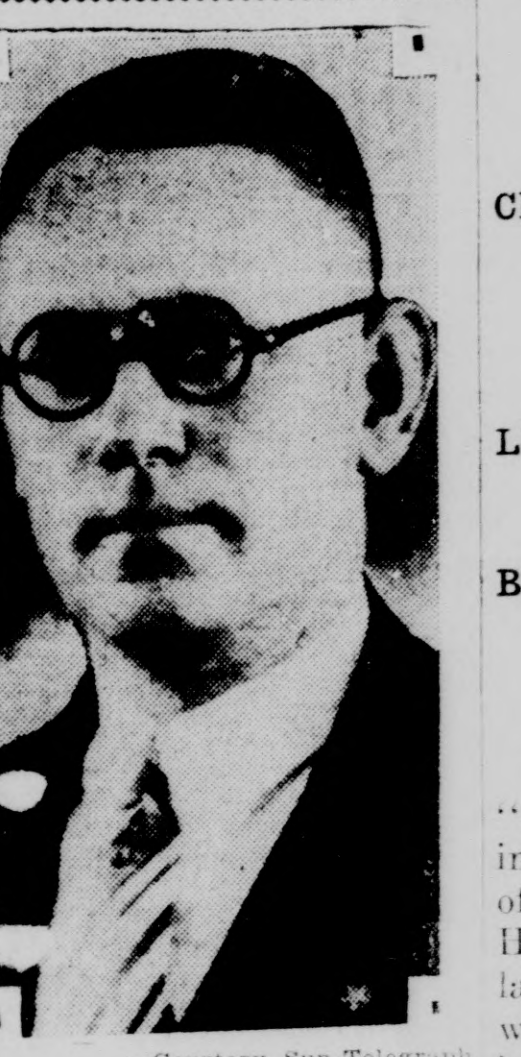

The bus, which was filled with basketball players of Burbank high school and the rooters, was returning from big game. The Burbank boys had won a 30-to-23 victory there.

They were happy. The joy of victory surged through their veins. The rooters and players were singing. The night's stillness was broken by their shouts of laughter and cheers.

They turned to screams and moans when the bus was struck by the train and was tossed 100 feet. The seven boys were killed instantly. Others lay about the wreckage. Some pinned beneath it.

Plan To Raise Wrecked Planes On Ocean Floor

Hope To Find Bodies Of Seven Movie Men In Cabins Of Fire-Charged Planes

THREE BODIES ARE RECOVERED

(International News Service)
SANTA MONICA, Cal., Jan. 4.—In the hope that the seven missing bodies lie within the twisted, charred fuselages of the two moving picture cabin planes that carried ten to their deaths, Naval Mine layers today were to attempt to haul the wreckage to the surface.

All night the mine layers held the two smashed planes at the ends of grappling chains which reached over 300 feet to the ocean floor.

Some believe that the strong current may have washed the bodies out through the open doors—the doors that were removed to enable cameramen to take unobstructed "shots" of the parachute jump that never was made.

Seven Still Missing

The two planes, carrying ten, pilots, directors and cameramen, crashed in midair over the ocean late Thursday and fell in a flaming death embrace into the ocean.

The bodies still missing are those of Kenneth Hawks, 32, director and husband of Mary Astor, motion picture star; Capt. Ross Cook, 32, and Lieut. Hallock Rouse, 33, pilots; Geo. Eastman, 29, cameraman; Otto Jordan, 26, assistant cameraman; Tom Harris and Henry Johannes, 24, property men.

The bodies of Max Gold assistant director; Conrad Wells, cameraman and Ben Frankel, assistant cameraman, were recovered after they were hauled clear of the falling planes.

Doak Mentioned As Cabinet Possibility

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—William N. Doak, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, and once a gubernatorial candidate in Virginia, was mentioned to President Hoover today for the post of secretary of labor when James J. Davis quits March 4.

A. F. Whitney, president of the trainmen's union, conferred with the President today, but declined to make a statement.

Doak was slated for the appointment at the start of the Hoover administration, but the opposition directed against him by other sections of labor caused Mr. Hoover to ask Secretary Davis to serve another year.

Trio Of Bandits Still Succeed In Eluding Officers

Bandits May Be Compelled To Stage New Hold-Up To Get Funds

Irene Schroeder, blonde "gunwoman" widely sought in connection with the slaying of Corporal Brady Paul, State Highway patrolman, is still at large today, having eluded, with her two male companions, police in the entire district.

With reports that the woman has been seen in points as far apart as Bellaire, O., and Pittsburgh; as well as Wheeling, W. Va., Benwood, W. Va., and other intermediate points, the notorious gunwoman is fast earning the sobriquet of "The phantom blonde."

A couple arrested in Pittsburgh yesterday and hurried to Greensburg headquarters of the State police has been exonerated of connection with the Schroeder woman and her two companions, who are believed to be her sweetheart, Glen Daguer and her brother Thomas Crawford.

New Report

A gas station attendant in Wilmerding, a suburb of Pittsburgh, reported to police that a blonde woman, with two male companions who kept themselves well concealed in their overcoats inquired the way to Greensburg late last night. The woman, who answers the description of the gunwoman, the attendant told police, did the talking.

Police, meanwhile, trace every possible clue. They are believed to be basing their hopes of capturing the trio on two possibilities: That the woman will refuse to leave the territory so long as her four year old son Donnie is held by police in New Castle; and that sooner or later the accused slayers will have to stage another hold-up to replenish their funds.

State and Local Police

Throughout the district are ready for instant action in all reported holdups on the hope that the desperate trio may be caught napping.

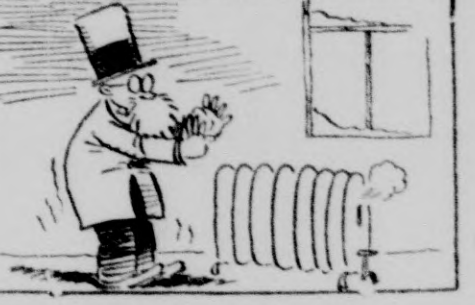

One theory advanced to explain the ability of the woman to evade capture is that she has dyed the blonde (Continued On Page Five)

Motor Stocks Move Upward

GOOD BUYING OF UTILITY STOCKS

By W. S. COUSINS
I. N. S. Financial Editor.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The best records in the dull and featureless week-end market were made by the automobile and utility stocks. Both groups were brought into the limelight by the important developments now being recorded in their respective industries, the motor stocks in particular, by the opening of the annual motor show under very favorable conditions.

Baldwin Locomotive and a few of the specialties continues the upward movements inaugurated earlier in the week, but the speculative favorites in the steel, copper, oil and other groups were unusually dull and inactive. Stock sales were approximately 1,250,000 shares, which was considerably below the December week-end average.

Nash Motor and Hudson sold up about 2 points at 57½ and 61¼ respectively. Chrysler was in big demand around 38 and sold fractionally above that price. General Motors and Packard rose fractionally and motor accessory stocks were active and firm. Baldwin Locomotive reached 34½ in its new rise, completing a gain of about 7 points for the week. Good buying of the favorite utilities was recorded in the final period.

avenue, Croton Hill, East Washington and the west side hill a thin piece of ice had coated the entire street. Drivers came over the top of the hill unmindful of what they were running into and was a shock to them when they applied their brakes. Several mishaps were barely averted, after the drivers had headed over a curb, or some other thing to avoid striking another car.

To make things worse, traffic speaking, the Cathedral crowd attending a consistory dinner broke loose during the midst of it. Some started down Highland avenue after another and for awhile the condition threatened to cause serious trouble.

Early this morning however the city had ashes over the dangerous hills and the treacherous condition was eliminated. Motorists coming to the city from points in the valley and across the Ohio line say this morning was unusually difficult. Cars proceeded with caution.

Union township school authorities report that the percentage of attendance during the past year was 96. Not a bad showing for a township school which is attended by some boys and girls who come long distances each morning no matter what it's like.

It is just the season of the year now for a portion of New Castle's residents to migrate into southern or western lands for the winter months. Railroad ticket offices report a large number of reservations have been made.

Mrs. Stephen Dulessei of R. D. 5 reported this morning that the first flock of young chickens on her farm were hatched Friday, January 3. This is one of the earliest flocks of peeps to be hatched in the year.

The wintry weather not only hit New Castle Friday night, but also traversed the sections of Pittsburgh. Coming by automobile from near Pittsburgh, Young Pa Newe discovered that a light blizzard had hit Butler. The windshield was a piece of ice and it was very dangerous driving.

Monday morning the usual scene of school children will be seen, for on that day school resumes after a two weeks vacation. The next holiday season for the schools will be the Easter vacation in April.

NATIONAL CAPITOL ROOM IS GUTTED BY FIRE, PROBE STARTS

covered just before 7 p. m. Six alarms were sounded, and fire apparatus dashed from all parts of the city. Historic Pennsylvania avenue became a parade-ground for swiftly moving fire trucks.

Capitol police, who had discovered the fire, led firemen to the burning rooms on the fourth floor, or attic, and several streams of water were turned upon the edifice. Smoke filled the Capitol and blackened one side of the great dome. The smoke is believed to have come chiefly from artists' chemicals, several paintings of composition claims justice and the composition of paintings. Few documents were burned.

Blaze Soon Put Out

The blaze was declared extinguished within an hour. Architect Lynn said a large part of the damage would result from seeping of water through the walls. Water reached into the offices of Justice Sanford of the Supreme Court, the House Indian Affairs and Banking Committee rooms and that of Rep. Garner, Democratic floor leader.

Capitol fires have not been uncommon according to Lynn. The last fire, he said occurred about 30 years ago in the Supreme court section of the Capitol.

A direct result of the fire may be the speeding of a new archives building, which is a part of the vast building program now under way in the Capitol. Senator Keyes (R) of New Hampshire, chairman of the Senate building committee, said he would press for immediate action.

Records threatened by last night's fire consisted of old bills of Congresses several years ago. While they were not regarded as particularly valuable they are kept in no other place, according to Elmer Lewis, superintendent of the Document room.

Fear was expressed by some that smoke may have damaged the world famous paintings which adorn the Capitol rotunda and other places, but Capitol officials said they believed they were unharmed.

Probe Reveals Little

Washington, Jan. 4.—Officials investigating into the fire which threatened the U. S. Capitol last night threatened to throw much light today on the cause of the blaze.

It was determined, however, that the flames started in the Model room of Charles Moberly, 61 year old artist, who was carried out of the smoke filled room by Capitol architects and talking incoherently.

David Lynn, Capitol architect, in charge of the investigation announced today that Moberly had admitted taking "couple of drinks" yesterday, but denied that he was intoxicated. Lynn also announced that Samuel Hall, an ex-Capitol policeman, was in the Model room with Moberly about the time the fire started.

Close examination of the electric wiring showed that it was in perfect order, and that probable cause was thus eliminated.

The blaze may have been started in oil soaked rags used by the painter, Lynn said. These rags usually thrown into a receptacle and wetted down to prevent fire, but a carelessly tossed match or cigarette may have been dropped into it and caught.

The TOWN DOCTOR

(The Doctor of Towns)

Says:

TO MR. AND MRS. AVERAGE CITIZEN OF NEW CASTLE
Regardless of what I think, irrespective of your opinion, there is indisputable proof that no individual, business, industry or community ever got any place doing the same old thing in the same old way.

We are all humans, subject to our own peculiarities. We object to change, and most of us detest preaching and dislike being told; yet every one of us wishes to be healthy, wealthy and wise. We all get in a rut more or less, and true it is that the only difference between a rut and the grave is the depth; and the longer we stay in a rut the deeper it gets. How readily we discard the old and accept the proven new depends on how deep we have sunk.

Great educators have said that the most difficult undertaking today is to get the people to think—one goes so far as to say that of every one hundred persons, two of them do all the thinking for the other 98. May be that's right, BUT I maintain that you and I will do our share if we are shown and given a reason why we should think, especially about that which affects our fun and our pocketbooks.

In sixteen years experience I have found that you are always willing to listen; and although you do not always act, I lay that to the fact that you have not been given the proper incentive. It is my further belief that you are willing to think about New Castle and willing to do something FOR New Castle if you are given good and sufficient proof that doing either or both will put money in YOUR pocket.

You and I—all of us—have been told by civic groups and through the columns of the papers we read, hundreds of times, that we should do this, and we shouldn't do something else, all for the vague reason that it's good for the community. But if I know you and know my own reactions to such, you are not "sold" on the idea that it's YOUR particular advantage always to practice what they preach.

You cannot be sold on anything that you know nothing about—the only way to know about anything is to THINK about it. A cow in a pasture gazes at a speeding railroad train, but does not really see it; the alarm clock rings in the morning, but the house cat goes on sleeping; a crawfish feels and a billy goat smells, but because they never think about it, it doesn't mean anything. If you could ask them they'd tell you that they did not see why they should be any different.

If you have never got down to brass tacks and tried to think out where you'd get anything out of taking an active part in community affairs, you don't know whether or not there is anything in it for you. If you have never offered to do anything along with other fellows, you don't know whether you'd even get a kick out of it. The only way to find out is to try.

You don't have to be one of the big toads in the puddle in order to "do something." It isn't always money that counts, nor are days of time away from work necessary. The big thing is to get right mentally. THINK about New Castle as a business—YOUR business. Don't holler about it, just think about it as you go along doing whatever you do to make a living.

The fellow who never tries, never knows; and he is the fellow who misses the real fun and the good things of life. TRY THINKING ABOUT NEW CASTLE.

General Mitchell has asked Congress to make every patrolman on his beat a prohibition agent, and provide two more federal judges to handle the prohibition congestion in the courts.

Storm Blows Strongly
Meanwhile, the storm of criticism blew on with scarcely diminished force, with the dregs themselves furnishing most of it and warring among themselves.

Returning to the attack on U. S. district attorneys who have been none too zealous in their prohibition efforts, Senator Borah declared that hereafter the judiciary committee, of which he is a member, is going to closely scrutinize all candidates for these posts before confirming them.

Not Quite Dry Enough
Some of the evidence of laxity among the district attorneys, with which Borah is plentifully equipped, is that a considerable number of the federal prosecutors are not personally as dry as they might be, and the intimation was plainly thrown out that henceforth the personal habits of district attorneys are going to come in for some attention.

"The man who takes a drink of liquor in violation of the law is unfit to be a district attorney," said Borah. Carried to its logical conclusion, Borah's condemnation would also take in all other classes of public servants, judges, federal officeholders of all kinds—and even senators and congressmen of whom Senator Jones, author of the five-and-ten law, said over the radio Thursday night there are a number who drink.

The joint congressional committee which will attempt to whip together the loose ends of prohibitory laws and effect necessary changes probably will consist of six men—three from the senate and three from the house.

Borah Displeased
The senate presumably will furnish the chairman. The sly suggestion of Senator Fess (R) of Ohio, that Borah himself, as the administration's chief prohibition critic, take over the chairmanship, was not particularly pleasing to Senator Borah.

"I thank Senator Fess for the solicitude he has shown for me," said Borah with a touch of asperity. "He did not say, however, whether he would or would not accept the assignment. The betting around the Capitol today was that he would not. Although he has been in the forefront of the dry ranks the last few years, the Idaho senator has scrupulously refrained from having his name attached to any prohibitory legislation.

While the storm rages and gathers force for and against the inevitable blow-off when congress reassembles next week, the anti-prohibitionists are remaining silent. There is going to be a meeting, however, of the so-called "Wet Bloc" in the house next week.

Why Say Anything

"Why should we say anything?" asked one prominent anti-prohibitionist when asked his opinion of the present furor. "The dregs are fighting among themselves, and demonstrating their own incapacity to handle what they have wrought. Let them go ahead and hang themselves from their own gallows."

Rep. John C. Schafer (R) of Wisconsin, however, has a bill prepared which he will introduce in the house next week designed to curb the zeal of enforcement agents who disregard the search-and-seizure provisions of the law.

Schafer's bill would make these over-zealous agents guilty of a felony.

SEVEN YOUTHS MEET DEATH IN CRASH OF BUS

under way today. Coroner J. B. Patterson, who is probing the crash for Wayne county authorities, declared that Baker, the driver, had failed to stop at the crossing, although he had slowed down.

Three eye witnesses reported to railroad officials, who are conducting a second probe, that the engineer of the train had blown the whistle as he neared the crossing.

Twenty In Bus

Twenty children were riding in the bus at the time. Five escaped uninjured, but they were unable to render any assistance to their companions. They were frantic and suffering from shock.

Two of the three injured girls are expected to die, according to physicians at Wooster hospital.

Baker, the driver, though not injured seriously, is unable to give a coherent story of the crash. He could only mumble unintelligibly. He was the owner of the bus and rented it to school officials.

It was uncertain here today whether the state utilities commission would also launch an investigation.

This is the second serious bus crash in Ohio in as many days. Two persons were killed and 43 were injured, near Eaton, Thursday, when a bus skidded from the road, struck a culvert, and then plunged down an embankment.

be reached on the candidates for any post. William S. Vare, Philadelphia leader, will not attend any of the meetings as he leaves for Florida today for a brief stay, he will be represented, however, by Sheriff Thomas W. Cunningham, Councilman Charles B. Hall and James M. Hazzlett of Philadelphia. Most of the visiting party leaders are stopping at the Bellevue Stratford Hotel where most of the conferences will be held.

Vare Forces Like Brown

The Vare group will insist upon naming of Francis Shunk Brown, former attorney general, to the gubernatorial candidacy. It is general feeling in political circles here that if Mellon and Grundy will accept the candidacy of Brown for the post of governor Vare will be willing to withdraw from the senate race, but there has come no indication from Vare himself that this will be the case. In fact, his last declaration when he leaves the Philadelphia railway station at 11 a. m. for the Southern Winter resort, is expected to be a flat declaration with all the old Vare determination and boldness that he is in the senate race to stay.

If custom becomes inherited instinct, how deftly the child prodigy in 1888 will insert bold No. 73.

Yet some fraternity houses are so old-fashioned they haven't a gallon of liquor on the place.

Garfield Barkley Funeral.
Funeral services for Garfield Barkley were held Friday afternoon from St. Luke's A. M. E. church with the pastor, Rev. G. H. Coffey, in charge, assisted by several local ministers. Pallbearers were Langster, Fred and Earl Weber and Fred Dohl. Interment was made in Greenwood cemetery.

John De Carlo Funeral.
Funeral services for John De Carlo, who died suddenly Thursday evening at his home in South New Castle boro, will be held from St. Vitus church Tuesday at 8:15 a. m. with interment in the church cemetery.

Funeral of Mrs. Grace Morse.
Funeral services for Mrs. Grace E. Morse, who died Friday afternoon from the home of her son, A. H. Morse, New Wilmington road, in charge of Rev. J. B. Porter, assisted by Rev. Ralph Neal of New Wilmington. The choir of the Central Christian church sang three numbers. Pallbearers were nephews of the deceased, Herbert and Harry Morse, Harry Jacobson, Herman Sankey, Earl Turk and Frank Shaffer. Interment was made in a Butler cemetery.

Building Trades Foresee Big Year

Stimulus Is Given To Construction By President's Program

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Contractors and building trades employers were looking forward today to an enormous nation-wide construction program for the year 1930.

Under the stimulus of President Hoover's December conferences, there has been a general increase in federal, state, county, municipal and private budgets. A survey being made by the department of commerce, although not yet half completed, already has developed a total of $4,700,000,000, and this does not include strictly private enterprises such as factory improvement and the erection of homes.

The commerce survey, made public by Mr. Hoover, includes complete reports from 16 states and partial returns from an additional 13. The projects thus far tabulated in this report amount to $1,550,000,000, and embrace the federal public works contemplated therein.

Railways have advised the government they intend to outlay 1,050,000,000 for addition and improvement. Public utilities, including the telephone company, have worked out a 1930 budget totalling $2,100,000,000.

"Our drive for increase in construction and improvement work to take up unemployment is showing most encouraging results," commented the president, "and it looks as if the work undertaken will be larger for 1930 than for 1929."

Woman Is Robbed Of $4,000 Gems

(International News Service)
OAKLAND, Cal., Jan. 4.—Declaring that she is the wife of Jackie Coogan's manager, a woman giving the name of Mrs. Jane Bernstein, reported to police today that she had lost jewelry valued at $4,000 while "on a party" last night.

The letter, self-explanatory, follows in part:

"We are planning to have our Wilmington plant deliver a 47-foot cruiser under its own power to Merritt and Chapman in New York.

"The boat is due to arrive in these waters on or about Jan. 6. It is requested that you withhold any marine gun fire in case your warning signals are inadvertently overlooked, as this boat is not navigated from an open bridge; quite on the other hand, the navigator is isolated within the boat by a sound-proof glass.

"There will be no time within which to have this craft repaired in case of damage."

"An acknowledgement of this letter is requested."

New Cruiser Boat To Be Delivered Coast Guardsmen

Navigator Will Be Isolated From Crew By Sound-Proof Glass

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—"Safety first" or "discretion is the better part of valor" might well be used as a title for the letter mailed the United States coast guard at the custom house here by the American Car and Foundry company.

The letter, self-explanatory, follows in part:

"We are planning to have our Wilmington plant deliver a 47-foot cruiser under its own power to Merritt and Chapman in New York.

"The boat is due to arrive in these waters on or about Jan. 6. It is requested that you withhold any marine

Robbery Reported At Crossman Store

Place of business of the Grossman Tire Shop, 1302 Moravia street which was burned out some time ago by a big fire which occurred in it and an adjoining building was the scene of a robbery recently according to the report made to the police.

The place has not been open for business for some time but a Ford battery has been found to be missing.

The investigation this morning was made by Detective Logan and Officer Lynch.

ESTHER BENDER WEDS REV. I. H. MEIER

A pretty wedding was solemnized Friday at noon when Miss Elizabeth Esther Bender, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bender of 804 Harbor street, became the bride of Rev. Irving H. Meier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Meier of Asbury Park, N. J.

Rev. Joseph Tunnore of Pittsburgh officiated at the ring ceremony and the bride was charming in a gown of white crepe. There were no attendants and only the immediate members of the families witnessed the ceremony.

A wedding dinner was given at the home of the bride's brother, Carl W. Bender on West Garfield avenue, after which Rev. and Mrs. Meier left for a two weeks' motor trip to Washington, D. C., and through Kentucky. The bride wore a brown ensemble for traveling.

Rev. and Mrs. Meier will reside in Asbury Park, where the groom is pastor of the Full Gospel church.

Men's Class Meets.
The Young Men's class of the First Congregational church met last evening at the home of Carl E. Turner, Arlington avenue for their January meeting.

The officers for the new year were inducted into office and a program of music and speeches was carried out. Evan Hopper pleased with a number of vocal selections and the men's chorus was greatly enjoyed. Rev. Rees T. Williams, pastor of the church, read an interesting paper. William Wignall and Charles Henry were special guests of the class.

At the close of the program the guests were invited to the dining room and the table was a pretentious sight with its bowl of pink cut flowers and tall wax tapers. A delicious menu was served the men by Mrs. Turner, with Mrs. Charles Henry and Mrs. Earl Keefe as aids.

The class will hold its February meeting at the home of Dan Richards, Winslow avenue.

Luncheon Spoon Club.
Mrs. H. M. Wirsing was hostess to the Luncheon Spoon club Friday at a 1 o'clock luncheon held at Mrs. Sel's. The afternoon hours were spent at bridge and social chat.

DETRACTORS

AFTER a brief lull, South American cities of the United States are again indulging in a campaign of singular violence against the ways and works of "Yankee imperialism" and that "monster to the North." Round and fulminating denunciations fill the daily editions of a certain section of the press, especially in Buenos Aires.

These attacks always picture Uncle Sam as a greedy ogre clutching South and Central America to his jaws. They concede nothing unselfish and defensive in the policies of Washington under the Monroe Doctrine. Nothing is said about the fact that the United States has preserved the independence made possible for the Latin-American republic by the Monroe Doctrine.

Our detractors below the Rio Grande are making the most of the situation in Haiti. Nicaragua comes in for special treatment. Every move of international significance made at Washington is made to appear as backed by some ulterior motive.

But these recurring attacks disturb and fool nobody. On the North American continent they are accepted as bought and paid for propaganda to increase trade between Latin-America and Europe at the expense of the United States. And judging from the rate of increase in our trade with the other American continents they are just as ineffectual among the domestic readers of the rabble-rousing wing of the Latin-American press.

Calling black white won't change the course of American coastwise steamship traffic.

MAYOR OF JOHNSTOWN DEPOSED

With Joseph Cauffiel serving a prison sentence for official misconduct, the Cambria county court has declared the office of Mayor of Johnstown vacant. His removal was part of the verdict returned by the jury which originally convicted him, but the Supreme Court failed to sustain the jury's ouster and Cauffiel refused to resign. The resulting confusion in the administration of city affairs is now apparently relieved by the latest judicial opinion, though it may also be appealed. The ruling cites the part of the constitution which demotes officials convicted of certain offenses.

The action apparently clears up what had become an embarrassing plight. For a time the legal machinery seemed inadequate. With the chief executive in jail and no means at hand for stripping him of his title, the municipal problem was more serious than a similar condition would produce in national or state affairs. In federal practice, for instance, the president, being immune from arrest during his incumbency, would first be subject to impeachment. If found guilty the penalty would be limited to removal from office and disqualification from further public honors. But thereafter as a private citizen he would be liable to indictment, trial and jail sentence or fine according to law.

In this commonwealth the governor's status is somewhat different. Although successful impeachment can do no more than deprive him of present and future office, he does not enjoy the president's immunities. Even though impeachment should acquit him, he might be subject to further indictment, trial and judgment like a private citizen. Moreover, he retains office until his successor qualifies.

This distinction between national and Pennsylvania procedure is striking. Which is preferable is hard to say. Fortunately, examples of both kinds have been too few to afford a test. But municipal irregularities are common. Democracy's vices are seen at their best in city governments.

LIQUOR ENFORCEMENT; NO MODIFICATION

If Senator Jones is correct—and he has interviewed the members of it—the Law Enforcement Commission is not interested in the wisdom or wisdom of the 18th Amendment. "It is a part of the Constitution," the senator explains, and he finds that the commission unanimously agrees that its function "is to devise the best means possible for enforcement."

This attitude is decidedly disturbing to the wets, who had been hoping that the commission would advise modification of the Volstead act as an aid in reducing bootlegging and smuggling. It should be satisfying to the dries, who may be expected to demand of congress still more drastic legislation.

As soon as the house agrees to the appointment of a congressional committee to sit down with the commission and receive its preliminary plans for strengthening the enforcement machinery, they will be made public officially, although the drift of them is already known. It is proposed to sever the prohibition unit from the treasury and to transfer its operations to the judiciary department; to increase the personnel of federal courts; to centralize authority along the borders. Larger appropriations will be required, and we may anticipate bitter clashes over that issue.

It is evident that we are to hear the whole story of enforcement all over again; what its friends say has been accomplished; what its enemies claim to be a farce. It may not be edifying, but the outcome would appear to be certain enough. Both senate and house are dry by large majorities—that is to say dry when it comes to voting, although personally—oh, well, that's another matter. Therefore any attempt to modify the Volstead act is doomed to failure, forecasts the Philadelphia Inquirer. Whatever legislation is adopted will be on the side of increasingly vigorous enforcement.

There stands the constitution. There stands the Volstead law. As long as amendment and law are in existence they must be respected by the authorities, even if they are not by numerous individuals.

Gay New Year Eve.
Din, Sin, And Gin.
Children Have A New Game.
What, No More War?

By ARTHUR G. BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1929, King Features Syn., Inc.)

The learned Prof. James Mackaye of Dartmouth brings forth a new theory of the universe, pushing Einstein and relativity into the background. The universe possesses a radiation of super-frequency and super-penetration, pervading all space.

The ether, which Einstein eliminated, returns, but it is a dynamic, not a static ether.

That deep news interests a few. Secretary Mellon says 1930 will be a super-year, money abundant, interest rates low, business good.

That interests everybody, violently. Infinite time, space and ether will take care of themselves. Nineteen thirty and business must be attended to at once.

Nineteen thirty is four days old.

Not fewer than a million good resolutions have been broken, more breakage will come later. But enough resolutions will be kept to provide the usual annual improvement.

New Year's eve throughout the country shed the usual light on prohibition, many prohibition raids, many arrests, unlimited whisky, gin, etc.

A moving picture advertisement invites you to see an all talking singing and laughing play that, to quote the promoter, "shows amazingly girls to hire, for the out-of-town buyer. The road to din, sin and gin. That road is wide open in this year of our Lord."

One newspaper describes New Years eve in New York as an effort to drown remembrance of margins wiped out, and, in spite of determined efforts of prohibition agents, as a "rather dismal, but doggedly drunken night."

At parties for young people, and in the so-called "best society," a new game for children is played. The younger boys ask an older boy of 16 or 17 "what time is it," and watch the younger American hold his wrist watch before his eyes and weave drunkenly to and fro, trying to focus his bleary sight. This seems delightfully amusing to the young boys.

For real information on youthful drunkenness, ask teachers in leading American preparatory schools, Hill Grotto, Lawrenceville, Saint Paul's, Choate, etc.

A crop of drunkenness is being bred that will disgrace this country, and injure the young American generation as oppressive child labor in England injured British youth in the last century.

However, New York, Chicago and other big wet cities are not all of the United States. In other places the nation's work goes on, as usual.

New roads, factories, dwellings, millions of automobiles are built, industries are perfected, even agriculture makes progress, with better machinery, and government credit.

In Lancaster, O., for instance, Mrs. Vincent Kemp had two sets of twins in 1929. The pair came on January 4, last. The second, on the last day of the year. That is the crop that counts and neither bootleg liquor nor drugs will ruin it.

But the American rich, bringing up boys to drink vile gin and whisky and girls to suck opium smoke through painted lips, would feel foolish if they could see their dear children, 25 years hence.

Gen. Smuts, able South African leader, is here to tell us that world wars are at an end.

Future wars, waged with poison gas and high explosives dropped on cities, with deadly bacteria used to spread devastating diseases, would be aimed first of all at civilians and armies and navies would play a minor part.

General Smuts says the world would not be so just, to allow such a conflict to begin, but suppose Russia, having successfully completed her program to spend 30 billions and pass the United States in industry, wealth and power, should decide to teach capitalism a lesson. Or suppose some Asiatic power annoyed by race discrimination, preparing secretly the necessary airships, submarines and chemicals should set out to rebuke western arrogance.

Does Gen. Smuts think that regard for women and children would prevent an attack?

Human nature and government have not changed much, since England turned loose hordes of red Indians, with tomahawks and scalp knives among women and children in the American colonies. Those knives and hatchets were as painful as any poison gas. The fact that war could be made unappealingly horrible with success certain for the aggressive attacking party, makes it, if anything, more probable.

What answer, but one, could this country make, for instance, if in one day a million human beings were wiped out in New York City, and the demand for complete submission were accompanied by a threat to destroy a million more next day.

Modern war can do to the biggest nation what one gunman does to a crowd of 20, surprised and held up in a small room.

This country needs understanding of its danger, and adequate preparation. Not much sentimental talk about world courts, brotherly love, no more war and other nonsense.

First prepare yourself, then talk to your brother sweetly and lovingly as you choose. It is not hard to pick a fight. Read the table of the lamb and the wolf, drinking from the same brook.

"There was plenty of water for both, but the wolf wanted a quarrel, and got it."

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight 4:46. Sun rises tomorrow 7:25.

People who are always looking for a pull might do better by trying a little push of their own.

When some of the United States senators make a bluff of doing something that should be done they start out by attacking either the president of the United States or some one else to us as if he was absolutely up to her to they very often shut up.

The Expression "Meaner Than Hell" is Often Applied to Some People. Could Anything be Meaner If What We Hear About That Place is True?

During the last hunting season in Pennsylvania fifty three persons were killed and 210 were injured. There is about as much good in the hunting season as there is in keeping dogs as big as calves in the city and letting them gallop around over the property of other people.

According to the stars this will be a very poor day to look for a letter, especially one containing money. While this way lays college boys will be greatly depressed.

During the afternoon it would be well for office workers to refrain from falling asleep at their desks, as employers are apt to be a bit sensitive at this time.

Husbands should make no attempt to drive the family car to work during this configuration for all such attempts will surely precipitate a domestic ruckus.

Harry McConnell of Leesburg had 12 of his Rhode Island Red hens stolen. One of these hens would make a big feed for a good size family and 12 such fowls would make just that many choice Sunday dinners. Harry's loss, with eggs worth five bits or more a dozen, is worth mentioning.

In Russia the drunks arrested have their names published in the newspapers to shame them into doing better. In this country the names of common drunks are never printed to keep their wives and children from being shamed. There is a lot of difference in the customs of different countries and sometimes it's hard to tell which has the most common sense. We are still for the customs in the countries that execute murderers while they still have the blood of the victims on their hands.

There are people who just love to bowl out a bill collector. Bill collectors exist because people do not pay what they owe when it is due. If they did there would be no bill collectors. Most bill collectors are pretty decent and honest and they often do not like the work either. It seems to us when a delinquent is approached by a bill collector he should call up the firm that sent him and bawl the boss out there instead of doing it to the collector. That would be the decent way to do a thing like that.

TODAY'S STORYETTE
A California and a New Englander were matching stories.

"Why," said the Californian, "we grow cabbages so large that an army of soldiers can camp under one."

"That's nothing," said the New Englander, "we make copper kettles in New England so big that a thousand men can be riveting one and yet so far apart they can't hear each other's hammers."

"Go on," said the Californian, "what would any one use a kettle that size for?"

"Well, to boil your California cabbage in, of course," responded the New Englander.

Stability Of Reich Revealed In German Vote On Young Plan

Failure To Defeat Young Plan Accepted By Americans As Guarantee Of Responsibility Of Teuton Republic

The overwhelming defeat of the German monarchists in the vote on the Young Plan is accepted as evidence of the stability and responsibility of the Reich among the world's republics.

"The essence of the 'liberty law,'" says the ATLANTA JOURNAL, "was that the monarchists should undertake no further financial obligations resting upon an assumption of German responsibility for the World War. This would mean that no agreement on future reparations could be entered into unless the Allies formally absolved Germany from war guilt; and ministers of the Reich who signed a pact on any other basis would thereby become liable to prosecution for high treason. The unreasonable and the cunning of this proposal lay in the fact that it linked the urgent question of reparations with the moot issue of responsibility for the war." The Journal points out that the measure was "defeated overwhelmingly on the final test."

"The Reich has a long and arduous pull ahead," as pointed out by the WASHINGTON EVENING STAR, "to meet the heavy burdens of the revised reparations system. But these events assure the world that the German people are determined to buckle to the task manfully. They would be less than human if they do so always uncomplainingly, but they have now assured themselves of that international good will so necessary to any country embarked upon the uphill journey on which Germany set out 10 years ago, and in which she is making such satisfactory and creditable progress."

Summarizing the situation, the LINCOLN STATE JOURNAL remarks that "Germany is probably not entirely satisfied with the Young Plan, nor are the allies, just as neither France nor the United States was entirely satisfied with the debt agreement. But the plan is the most satisfactory likely to be arranged for years, and it is time that some settlement be made, so that compromises on both sides are in order."

"The German people must have caught the tenor of the Nationalist propaganda that by a stiff resistance they could free themselves of the Young Plan's obligations," suggests the BALTIMORE SUN, with the added statement: "That they did not support this wild doctrine even though it expressed their inner desire, is evidence of their mental stability, and augurs well for the maintenance of foreign negotiations with Germany on a reasonable basis beyond the reach of extreme emotionalism."

The LYNCHBURG ADVANCE concludes that, "fortunately, the German people are not willing to sacrifice national prosperity in order to strengthen political groups which hate the republic." The Advance holds that the German people are now coming to be led astray by a group of politicians who are attempting by every means to overthrow the republic.

Hugenberg, whose bill was defeated, "has already been forced," in the opinion of the SALT LAKE DESERET NEWS, "to recognize that his agitation against the Young Plan has proved less damaging to the plan than to his own following, and that paper thinks that 'to the humiliation of defeat were added the ridicule and contempt attached to a campaign which was regarded as too nonsensical to be taken seriously.'"

The LOUISVILLE COURIER-JOURNAL observes that "it has left the reactionary element materially weaker than before the mischievous proposal was launched."

"The supporters of the government," records the PITTSBURGH POST-GAZETTE, noting that they accepted the Young Plan as the best possible under the circumstances, "threw their position principally by abstaining from the vote, treating with contempt the forces that brought about the referendum. * * * It confirms the belief that the German republic has passed the stage where it needs to have much fear of the reactionary monarchists. At the same time, of course, it is tribute to the merit of the revised reparations plan."

"As a majority of the 42,000,000 electors would have been necessary to override the Reichstag," states the RICHMOND NEWS LEADER, "the Nationalists failed by 15,300,000 votes." The News Leader adds: "Unless Germany runs counter to the experience in France after 1870, the Nationalist cause will decline steadily." The BIRMINGHAM NEWS declares: "After 12 years of Nationalist outbreaks like this latest one, Germans ask nothing better than to the free of this grandstand performance and be allowed to get down to the business of practical living."

"Obviously," according to the NEW YORK TIMES, "it is now the settled belief of the German people that if reparations are ever again to be revised and the moral verdict against Germany ever to be rescinded, the change must be brought about by the operation of the spirit of good will among Germany's former enemies. The SCENETADY GAZETTE is impressed by the fact that 'one event after another in the last half dozen years has proved conclusively that Germany seeks peace and the friendship of its sister countries.' The advantages to be derived from such a course are emphasized by the ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH, while the NEW YORK EVENING WORLD says: 'The ideals of Dr. Stresemann abide with the German people and his successor has a mandate from the people to carry on the enlightened policies of the dead statesman.'

The CHARLESTON EVENING POST sees "a gratifying demonstration of the readiness of the new Germany to accept the war settlement arrived at by the nations and proceeded to the task of meeting the terms." The CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER finds that "the test has proved the German democracy unmistakably safe and sane." The WHEELING INTELLIGENCER sees "no better example in modern history of the principle 'give the people light and they will find their way.'"

The PROVIDENCE BULLETIN is convinced that Dr. Hugenberg and his followers ought to realize by now that Germany intends to remain a republic, and that the German people would rather work out their world problems on the basis of conciliation than by threatening gestures."

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

IRRESISTABLE VS. IMMOVABLE

A small army of men who have been working for years under the strictest oaths of secrecy are now completing the new vaults for the Bank of England in London. They have transformed them into a veritable fortress of steel and stone, a $25,000,000 attack which will be able to defy any attack.

Bombs will be useless and underground tunnels with meet with impenetrable barriers. Engineers estimate it will take weeks of hard work with dynamite and oxyacetylene torches even to damage the huge steel doors that lead to the vaults.

Concrete walls, seven feet thick run around the vaults. The vault doors are solid steel, and weigh twelve tons each.

The bank has its own water supply, electric plant, and an army of guardsmen. In case of attack by revolutionary forces, the guards could withstand siege indefinitely.

Now, $25,000,000 might mean a lot and then again it might not. The Lexington and Saratoga cost about $60,000,000 each. And as for guards and a revolution—the guards might by sympathizers with the Revolutionists.

Nothing in life is certain.

ARGUMENTATIVE JANET

"This strange that one so very young Can have so positive a tongue. And also can possess a mind So much to argument inclined.

At seven years old that child of ours Displays unusual vocal powers. And, what I think is stranger still, A most unusual strength of will.

She fears no threat; she fears no frown. With the argument she'll talk us down, And with the logic of a child She fairly drives her parents wild.

"Now, Janet," mother whispers low, "Please bear in mind that I said 'no.' I know you said it," she'll reply, "But, mother dear, please tell me why?"

"Why may I not go out to play Because it is a rainy day? What difference does the weather make? I have a raincoat I can take."

When "no" is said to me I stop And promptly let the matter drop. But meekly takes his mother's nay And never has a word to say.

The maids, the nurse, won't argue back Or still insist that white is black. But Janet stands through thick and thin And talks us into giving in.

Scores Of Autos Skid On Icy Hills Last Night

Motorists of this city had the time of their lives last night in going home, especially if they lived in any of the hill districts.

This was due to the fact that the highways of the city, especially that were paved, became covered with a sheet of ice due to the fall of snow and the damp condition of the pavement and ground due to previous rains.

Those who had chains on their wheels managed to get up the hills, in most instances.

A majority of the motorists, however, had not seen fit to put on chains and when they attempted the hills, all they could do was to slide here and there, up on sidewalks, in the street car tracks, sideways and every other way.

Some managed by going in low and with terrific wear on their engines and tires, to get to the top of the hills, after fifteen to thirty minutes time.

On the Highland avenue hill, scores of cars were in trouble from ten-thirty o'clock on. A group of men helped a number up the hill by pushing in the rear as the driver used all available power for traction purposes.

One motorist solved the problem by going up the east sidewalk of Highland avenue hill.

This morning the conditions were so bad, that the street department had several trucks and a force of men placing ashes on the various hills, in order to afford motorists an opportunity of getting up and down them.

street has returned to her home after visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Marshall McGough of Pittsburgh.

Oliver Turvo has returned to Westminster college after spending the vacation period with his parents on Arlington avenue, this city.

Mrs. Alan Cutwright and daughter Charlotte Marilyn of Croton avenue returned to their home today from the New Castle hospital.

John Biasucci and family of Cleveland, O., are spending the weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Landolf of Long avenue.

Mrs. Richard Mason left Friday evening for Albany, N. Y., where she will attend the wedding of Rev. Colivar Mason, a brother of her husband.

C. M. Barker of Toledo, O., is visiting two weeks with his parents Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Barker and sister Mrs. C. M. Booher of the Seventh ward.

Miss Charlotte Patterson daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Patterson who is a student at the Harcum school in Bryn Mawr, Pa., is at home for the holidays.

Arthur and Paul McCay have returned to Chicago after spending the Christmas holidays with their parents Mr. and Mrs. W. R. McCay of Maryland avenue.

John W. Hutton of 413 Park avenue, who has been ill in the Jameson Memorial hospital for several weeks, was able to return to his home today. Mr. Hutton is much improved.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Mayberry, Mrs. Margaret Adams and little daughters of New Brighton, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. McClure and children of Hartstown, spent New Year's day with Mr. and Mrs. W. R. McCay of Maryland avenue.

D. M. Boyce, father of Mrs. S. B. Carpenter of 215 E. Lincoln avenue, will leave Sunday for his home in Santa Monica, Cal. Mr. Boyce has been in this city for three weeks, his first visit here for many years.

Miss Clairemae Lindsey, Miss Claudia Bauman, Maude Troop, Virginia McMillen and Ralph Huffman, students at Edinboro State Teachers college, will leave Sunday to resume their studies after the holiday vacation.

Miss Marlene McElwee, daughter of Attorney and Mrs. William McElwee of New Wilmington, will leave tonight to resume her studies at Temple university, after spending the holiday period with her parents in the college town.

Large Crowd At Dinner-Dance

Orchestra Features Novel Program At Consistory Event

"RED" WILLIAMS IS GIVEN WATCH

There probably was no actual count made of the crowd present at the Consistory dinner-dance held in the Cathedral Friday evening, Jan. 3, but the total would show close to 1,000. The dinner-dance was one of the most interesting held in some time, with one feature capturing the interest of the crowd.

The feature was the Lions Little Symphony orchestra, presenting "Fifteen Minutes With the Old Masters", under the personal direction of Professor Alvah M. Shumaker, attorney-at-law by profession and a musician by choice.

Beethoven, Schubert, et al. Each member of the orchestra was dressed to impersonate some of the old masters, with Professor Shumaker garbed much after the fashion of David Warfield in his role of "The Music Master". Attorney Clarence A. Patterson bore a striking resemblance to the late lamented Beethoven, while Arch Cubbison had the appearance of Schubert. Red Williams could have been accused of impersonating Liszt, if that gentlemen had red hair.

While the costumes of the orchestra were caricature, there was nothing of caricature or burlesque about the numbers they played. "A Christmas Symphony," by A. Hewitt, was presented, with portions of classical and religious numbers incorporated.

The Lions Little Symphony orchestra was first organized as a stunt by the club. The stunt has captured the public fancy to such an extent that it will be continued and will undoubtedly be heard of more in the next few months.

List of Members. With Attorney Alvah M. Shumaker as the "professor", the orchestra is composed of the following: piano, Jessie Nelson Reed, and Helen Ewing; violin, Robert Sherman; trumpet, B. J. Biondi; drums and nightingale, Arch Cubbison; cymbals, A. Hughes Bartlett; triangle, Thomas I. Elliott; cuckoo and blocks and whistles, Anthony Marino; whip-lash and Bob White whistle, Attorney Clarence A. Patterson; sleigh-bells, George Sillman; kazoo and rattle, W. O. "Red" Williams; tambourine, Dr. J. L. Reed; gong, Arthur J. Rees; Glockenspiel, William Hodgkinson. Each of the instruments had solo parts at various times during the rendition of the number.

The speaker of the evening was William Harwood, who related his experiences as a big game hunter and as a trapper of wild animals for circuses. He spoke on his experiences in Africa and India and some of his circus life.

Red Gets a Watch. As a tribute to his work in the past months in Consistory and civic activities, a handsome wrist watch was presented to W. O. "Red" Williams. W. Stanley Treser made the presentation. Mr. Williams has been the song director at practically every Consistory gathering and his ability in that line has added much to the programs. The gift was a pretty gesture of appreciation.

Following the dinner and the program of entertainment the crowd danced until one o'clock.

Appeals Sentence For Falsifying Her Income Tax Report

(International News Service) HOLLYWOOD, Cal. Jan. 4.—While Miss J. Marjorie Berber, income tax adviser awaited the outcome of her appeal today from a 30 months sentence for falsifying income tax reports of several film stars, the government filed four tax liens against her, totalling nearly $1,600.

Carmel Myers Has Very Close Call

(International News Service) HOLLYWOOD, Cal. Jan. 4.—Friends today were congratulating Carmel Myers, exotic beauty of the screen, on her escape from death when her automobile burst into flames. Miss Myers' chauffeur quickly stopped the limousine and hurried the screen star to safety. The car was a total loss.

With the police of many states hunting for his mother and her paramour, little Donnie Schroeder is thinking little of clues and rumors and man hunts. The little fellow is well cared for, has plenty of toys and companions and is being outlived today with new clothes.

Car To Be Returned.

Frank Bowers of the Chambers Motor company left today accompanied by R. C. Horton, whose car was stolen on Friday of last week by the woman and men who shot and killed Corporal Brady Paul, for Wheeling, W. Va., for the purpose of bringing back the car of Mr. Horton, which was found in a garage at Wheeling Island, W. Va.

They are traveling in a Chrysler 70, 1930 model, green colored sedan bearing dealers license 6X074. This car will act as pilot to the Horton car enroute back home, in order that there may be no delays or holdups of any kind due to the notoriety that the Horton machine has gained due to the part that it played in the entire affair.

The Horton car, a Chrysler 65 aluminum roadster, will be brought back some time tonight. Messrs. Bowers and Horton were equipped with all necessary evidences of ownership.

The car will be brought to the Chambers Motor company place at 825 Croton avenue, where it will be checked over to determine any damage that may have been done to it by the holdup woman and her pals.

An inspection of the car revealed the fact that it had been driven 900 miles after it was stolen from Horton. Where the car had been after it left here is a mystery. Nine hundred miles would represent a long trip after the trip from here to Wheeling and it is possible that this may explain the reports of the car being seen in several Ohio cities.

Westminster College Classes Are Resumed

Students Return To New Wilmington After Holiday Vacation

(Special To The News)
NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Jan. 4.—Classes resumed at Westminster College yesterday after a two-week recess for the holidays. Many activities will be crowded into the period before the Easter recess which starts March 21.

The president's reception, an annual affair, will be held Tuesday night of next week at 8:15. First semester examinations start Monday, Jan. 20 and run until Friday, Jan. 24. The first semester ends officially on Saturday, Jan. 25. Second semester starts Monday, Jan. 27.

Professor A. T. Cordray's class in acted drama will present "Minick", three-act comedy Friday, Jan. 27 in the Community House. Varsity debate teams of girls and boys will start their schedules. Sixteen basketball games will be played.

In addition to these activities, intramural basketball will start, the varsity track team will report for indoor workouts, and a number of outstanding lectures and recitals will be given before students leave for the spring recess.

It is thought that the enrollment will increase for the second semester as some 50 graduates of mid-year classes from high schools have written for information on registration. Approximately 65 seniors will spend the latter part of January and three weeks in February as practice teachers in New Castle and Sharon schools.

SPECIAL CLASS MEETING
A special meeting of class number 11 and the officers and teacher of class number 7, was held in the basement of the church Thursday. Plans were made for a contest between the two classes. The contest will be held during the months of January, February, March and April. The losing side is to banquet the winning side at the end of the contest. Those present Thursday evening were Mrs. Ada Kent, Mildred Moffitt, Leona Lutz, Mrs. Charles Brown, Elmer and Earl Kelly, Charles Solsberg, Martin, Thomas and Merl Houk, Herman and Lewis Guy, George Shallenberger.

Faculty Members Travel Far During Recent Holidays

(Special To The News)
NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Jan. 4.—Westminster College faculty members traveled extensively during the Christmas recess, a survey shows. Many states in the Union were visited by the professors, most of whom spent the holiday season at their homes.

Prof. John Moorhead spent the vacation at his home in Indiana; Miss Florence White was at Beaumont, Texas; Miss Lois Doolittle and Miss Juanita Robinson were at Cedar Rapids and Iowa City, Iowa, respectively; Prof. Ben Ewema was at Chicago, Ill.

Dean Charles Freeman spent Christmas in New Mexico; Prof. J. G. Lutz was in New York City; Prof. H. D. Farish visited in West Virginia; Dr. B. E. Quick was in Michigan; Prof. A. T. Cordray was at his home in Peebles, O.

Society Bored Her

So Toledo Girl Went To Coast And Won $10,000 Contract As Scenario Writer

MISS GENEVIEVE SEARLE

(By Central Press)
TOLEDO, O., Jan. 4.—A Toledo society girl, who scorned the dolls Santa Claus brought her each Christmas for her father's old typewriter and story books meant for boys, has won a contract from James Cruze, cinema director, in Hollywood, to write scenarios for $10,000 a year as a starting salary.

Miss Genevieve Searle, daughter of Robinson P. Searle, wealthy official of a Toledo oil company, struggled in the movie capital for five years before she won recognition.

Bored by Society
The other day news dispatches from Hollywood told of her good fortune and quoted her as saying that she had tried her hand at writing because society bored her. A story plot which would reject as too much like the old Cinderella tale has come true in her own life.

Several years ago Genevieve informed her parents that she was tired of going to high school and that she was going to become an author. She immediately went to work as a stenographer in several local offices to get atmosphere for her stories. But rejection slips always came to her instead of checks.

Five years ago Genevieve started for Hollywood, stopping off at a ranch near the Mexican border to see what the rural life was like. There she learned to ride bucking bronchos. The training later proved profitable to her when she got a chance to take a part with Hoot Gibson. Later she became a script clerk at $60 a week.

Night after night she would write scenarios on the battered old typewriter she had carried along to the coast.

It was not until a month ago that a break came in her luck. Miss Searle's mother revealed, after she had heard about her daughter's scenario contract.

New Name Does Trick
Miss Searle went to a numerologist and he persuaded her to change her name from "Genevieve" to "Nagene". The next story she sent to a movie magazine was accepted. From that time on checks started coming in and finally Cruze accepted a scenario. He was so well pleased with it that he offered her the $10,000 contract.

Mrs. Searle says her daughter always preferred fairy stories and tales of adventure to her dolls. And now her own has been realized.

Members of the New Castle Auto Dealers Association held their weekly meeting at the Elks Club at noon yesterday, when a luncheon was enjoyed. There was a large number of the membership present.

The matter of holding an automobile show in the near future was discussed and the used car situation was also gone into by the members.

Foster's Weather Forecast

WASHINGTON Jan. 4.—Following moderate storm wave, expected to center on January 2 a rather severe cold wave will cross continent centering on 5; this cold wave is expected to reach far into the south but not to carry freezing temperatures to where they would not be expected at this time of the year. After cold wave centering on 5 has passed temperatures will average higher during severe storm period 8 to 16; most severe storms and most precipitation will be expected during this severe storm period; storm forces of this period will be expected to center in severe storm waves expected to cross continent during weeks centering on 9 and 14 to be general over the continent.

Precipitation during January is expected to average above normal for the continent and to be distributed as follows: Increase during the month and average above normal in sections 2, 4 and 6 averaging heavier in west than in east part of this area; a little above normal in east half and a little below normal in west half of sections 1, 3 and 5 which will be about same as for December in this area, decreasing but averaging near normal in sections 7, 8 and 9. Principal evaporation area that will furnish precipitation for North America during January will be located on the North Atlantic ocean; this will cause most precipitation during the month to fall as described above. A minor evaporation point will be located on the central Pacific ocean and will be expected to keep central and northern Pacific slope fairly wet and to cause above normal precipitation in Central and northern Rockies during the month.

Sun Spots and Earth Weather.
A principal reason for errors that appear in my forecasts is the fact that my calculations do not always include the full influence of sun-spots as they make contact conducive to the movement of force between sun and earth after such spots have been formed and have made one complete circuit of the sun. Near December 4 the relative positions and movements of Jupiter, Earth, Moon, Sun and Mars in the order as named and as described in a former bulletin caused severe storms in North America near that date and very severe storms in and near Europe ten days later; these conditions were very close to those forecasted in these bulletins. The average sunspot is supposed to circuit the sun in seven days; Fr. Ricard says 6.82 days, which is probably correct. Whether spots around the sun in 6.82 days or whether they are partly carried by the movement of the sun and do not make a complete circuit of the sun in that time, we do not know but it is certain that many prominent spots occupy the same position on the disc of the sun as viewed from the earth that they occupied seven days previously. Near December 11 seven days after planetary position referred to above, things begin to happen to my temperature forecasts; it was evident that spots formed near December 4 had moved around the sun and were starting their influence on earth weather over again.

(To be continued next week)

Beck's Death Is Held Accidental

According to word received by Mrs. Carl Beck, of 707 Young street, the death of her husband, on August 21, has been held accidental by the insurance company.

It will be recalled that Mr. Beck's body was found in the river at Pittsburgh on the above date. After a careful investigation, the insurance company pronounced the belief that he had been a victim of an accident and that his body had been placed in the river afterwards.

The Bush & Lane Shield identifies the one radio "built like a fine piano." Far from being an empty phrase—that designation is the explanation for the classic beauty, painstaking craftsmanship, and perfection of tone found in the Bush & Lane—the product of a group of men who have been piano craftsmen for almost 40 years.

At the Radio Shows where all the manufacturers bring their radios to be displayed to the trade, few models commanded more enthusiasm from the experts than this Bush & Lane Model 32. Because the hundreds of men who attend these expositions are keen judges of public preference, it was no surprise to them, or to Bush & Lane, that Model 32 has quickly established a record for itself in public acceptance.

Italian Renaissance in design, this model gains its stately beauty from rich maple burl overlays, tasteful treatment of carvings, and the contrasts of figured walnut. This model, like all 12 in the Bush & Lane line, has 8 tubes, is all-electric, and operates on a full neutrodyne circuit, $179.50 less tubes.

REVOLTING CONVICTS PAY WITH LIVES

(International News Service)
FOLSOM STATE PRISON, Cal., Jan. 4.—The first of three men to be hanged in California prisons on "black Friday," Tony Brown, one of the leaders in the bloodiest prison break in California history, went to his death on the gallows here Friday.

The trap was dropped at 9:03 and he was pronounced dead 11 minutes later.

Immediately after Eddie Stokes, Los Angeles bandit, was led from the "black alley" to follow Brown to his doom.

Meanwhile at San Quentin prison preparations were completed for executing Louis Lazarus, "bad man" and killer, for complicity in murdering William McFarlin, a teller, in an Oakland branch bank robbery in July, 1928.

Lazarus was hanged at 10:02, being pronounced dead 13 minutes later.

All Die Gaily.
It was the first time in history at which executions have occurred at the state's two prisons on the same day.

Brown and Stokes were the first of the six riot chiefs to pay with their lives for causing the slaying of nine fellow prisoners and two guards in an uprising on Thanksgiving day, 1927.

Brown, his face pale as death, was led to the gallows by Turnkey Walter Neil, whom he crippled for life with a bullet through the knee in the mutiny.

Brown died silently, a cigaret on his lips. Not a word did he utter from the time he left the death cell till the trap was sprung.

There was no chaplain there to give him spiritual consolation that he had spurned. So had Stokes. They were "tough guys" and wanted none of this "religious stuff," they had told the warden.

Divorced Wife Of Dynamic Chicago Architect Dies At Her Home In Milwaukee

(International News Service)
MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 4.—Miriam Noel Wright, divorced wife of Frank Lloyd Wright, noted architect, died here Friday following a long illness of pernicious anemia.

Death of Mrs. Wright closed one of the most dramatic chapters in the varied and colorful career of the Chicago architect.

Miriam Noel Wright just after she had made her debut as a sculptress in Paris. The second chapter of the architect's marital life had recently come to a tragic close. Mamah Borthwick Cheney, with whom he had eloped a few years before, and her two children had been murdered by a crazed servant at Wright's beautiful home at Spring Gardens, Wis.

Wright had left his six children to live with Mrs. Cheney. Her death occurred in 1914 and within two months Miriam Noel had entered his life.

With her he fled to California. For a year they made their home on the Pacific coast and then journeyed to Japan.

Douglass And Mary Back In Hollywood

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 4.—Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford returned to their home in Los Angeles Friday after a four months world tour, arriving here on the Japanese liner Asama Maru from Tokyo.

Fairbanks was greatly impressed by his visit to China and Japan, and indicated that he wanted to make a motion picture with an oriental locale.

Both Fairbanks and Miss Pickford declared that they would not make another picture together, but would choose stories in which each could star individually.

Start Burial Of Seventy Victims Of Theater Fire

Fifty Funerals Of Small Children Held At Paisley, Scotland, Friday

(International News Service)
PAISLEY, Scotland, Jan. 4.—Fifty little victims of the terrible panic which resulted in the deaths of 70 children at the Glen Cinema here on New Year's eve, were buried in separate services here Friday.

The 50 funeral processions lasted for five hours. Each body was carried to its final resting place in a tiny white casket, while virtually the entire populace of Paisley turned out to witness the sad interment.

Flags throughout the town were flown at half-mast, while church bells tolled a solemn dirge. Business was suspended.

The remaining 20 victims of the tragedy will be buried today.

Meanwhile investigation into the disaster was being pushed by authorities from London. The manager of the cinema, Charles Dorrard, is under arrest, charged with culpable homicide.

State Troopers Still Seeking Slayer Of Bruno Cantine
At No. 5 Mine

GROVE CITY, Jan. 4.—The state troopers are still near No. 5 mine which lies between Mercer and Grove City looking for the slayer of Bruno Cantine, 53. The man sought, is Frank Pantello who fled and the officers are looking for him around the mine, thought he might be harbored near in some ones home.

The inquest was held at 5 p. m. last evening in the assembly room of the court house at Mercer, Benny Domoto and Tony German, who witnessed the killing testified.

Peter's Adventures

WHO COMES THERE?
"Mouse Restaurant" shrieked the birds. "Never heard of it. Where is it? What mouse built it?"
Peter laughed out loud.
"You don't understand," said he. "Sexton Beetle built it. All mouse has to do with the restaurant is to serve as a meal for those who dine there."
"Cheep! Peep!" Now, indeed, the birds are all a-twitter. "Dining on mouse, how dreadful. 'Tis bad as dining on birds. Some folks do even that so we've heard. We hope you're not one of those cannibals, boy!"
"I'm not!" cried Peter, quickly, then remembered he had a particular fondness for chicken but decided not to admit it. Surely a little white lie could do no harm—it was better than hurting the feelings of the feathered folk. Besides chicken wasn't really a bird—not a little bird anyhow. But Peter must have looked a bit queer for the birds who had hopped down to perch on the same bough with him looked at him curiously.
"Dear me I hope you're not feeling ill. Maybe you've eaten too many apples. I do myself sometimes" chirped one friendly fellow.
"Hello there," interrupted Father Bird. "What on earth is the matter with that insect down there. It staggers—or do my eyes deceive me?"
"The fellow doesn't seem to be acting naturally," said Mother Bird, peering through the leaves. "I wonder who he is. Look the poor fellow has just run into a stone. There he has fallen in a heap!"
The boy looked down on the path below and caught sight of a little insect lying flat on his back and kicking his feet in the air.
There was something about those kicking feet that seemed strangely familiar and recalled a scene in which Peter and a certain small beetle had been tangled up in a clump of grass and the beetle had lain on his back as did the insect down on the path.

Prince Of Wales Sails For Africa

(International News Service)
SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Jan. 4.—The Prince of Wales sailed aboard the Union Castle liner Kenilworth Castle for Cape Town, South Africa, on a hunting tour at 3:52 o'clock Friday afternoon.

From Cape Town he will journey to Nairobi, East Africa, where he will resume the big game hunt which was interrupted in December, 1928, by King George's serious illness.

Although the traveled from London to Southampton in the regular boat express train, crowds gathered at the various stations enroute in the hope of catching a parting glimpse of the prince as he passed.

Another crowd was on hand at the pier to cheer him on his way and to wish him God speed.

Reno Marriages Outrank Divorces

(International News Service)
RENO, Nev., Jan. 4.—There are a few figures from Reno, where many unhappy married people come to take the "cure."
Divorced in 1929—2,106.
Washoe county netted from above—$105,300.
Estimated attorney fees—$526,500.
Estimated profit, indirectly, to Reno—$1,260,000.

Marriages during 1929 exceeded divorces, however. Many Californians come here to be married, in order to circumvent the three-day wait necessary in that state.

Bo Broadway by JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

By Central Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Alice Delysia, who is enjoying a new vogue in London, where she was always a favorite, occasionally visits Broadway. But of late when she crosses from London she appears to arrive incog. In some mysterious fashion she slips past the shipwreck reporters and the camera men. She sees all there is to see on Broadway, stops at some quiet hotel and sends for a few friends, and then just as mysteriously disappears again.

Later those who know her in New York hear she has reappeared in London. Delysia always has offers for American engagements, but she has declined them steadily of late.

HODGE'S FOLLOWING
William Hodge for the time being is playing on Broadway, but this star does not appear to be troubled with that bane to managers, the determination never to play very far from Broadway. Hodge makes long tours and enjoys them. This he has built up a fellowship from coast to coast which is intensely loyal to him and to which he in turn is loyal. If more stars of the legitimate followed Hodge's example the legitimate would not have cause to complain so loudly of the "filmmus".

BACK AGAIN
"No, no, my dear Watson," or "My dear Watson," or again, "You see, my dear Watson"—all of these have again become a part of Broadway slang—due to the last appearance on the stage of William Gillette in "Sherlock Holmes." The newer Broadway and the older, the flapper and the dowager alike, have turned to the old acting classic for a taste of what they can't find elsewhere. And even the bookstores report an increased demand for all the Conan Doyle stories in which the well loved detective appears.

Long distance pole-sitting reached such a point of interest in a Maryland town recently that members of a church held a prayer-meeting at the foot of one on which a boy had been perched for a week. It seems to us that what that kid needs is less prayers and a little attention from an alienist, who might also make an examination of his enthusiastic supporters.

Large Crowd Gathers Around Police Station; Lured By False Rumor

Hundreds of people gathered about the city police station about 5 o'clock last night, when wild rumors circulated about the city, that one of the bandits, who killed Corporal Brady Paul on Friday of last week had been apprehended by the city police.

There interest there centered about the Pontiac Coupe of Lester Brown of Akron, O., through the back of which was a bullet hole and which in many ways resembled the car the Paul killers and now said to be traveling about the country in.

In fact the interest of the crowd as it grew rapidly into larger proportions, was taking a turn that might have proven disastrous to the owner of the machine and it was necessary for the officers to go among the people calming them and explaining the situation.

It was the second occasion on which Brown had come into contact with the search under way for the killers and to him, the experience was far from pleasant or funny.

Last Saturday he was in the vicinity of his people's home in the Slippery Rock District, when a constable also thought his machine was that of the bandits and fired a shot through the rear of his machine.

The bullet passed through the back of his machine, a Pontiac Coupe bearing an Ohio license, the bullet passing within three or four inches of him and going through and breaking his windshield. The constable was plain clothed and Brown kept on going, thinking he was being held up.

He managed to get to his grandparents in the vicinity, placed his car near the barn and went into the house.

The constable rounded up a group of state police officers searching in the district and when Brown came out, he found himself the center of a group of stern, determined officers armed with loaded guns, out and ready for use.

He was able to establish his identity and the constable bought him a new windshield.

Last night while on his way home from Akron, where he is employed in the Goodrich tire factory, he stopped in the Allen street district to visit friends.

Officers Criswell and McKee were scouting on East Washington street with one of the city motorcycles, when they saw the Pontiac Coupe bearing an Ohio license parked on Allen St.

It answered the description of the car that the bandits are now said to be traveling in and the officers, locating the owner, took him and the machine to the police station.

He was able to establish his identity to the satisfaction of the police officials and was permitted to go on his way.

PRINCIPALS IN MOVIE AIR CRASH WHICH KILLED 10

Here are four of the victims of the air crash near Santa Monica, Cal., which snuffed out the lives of 10 men engaged in making a moving picture "shot," when two planes, each carrying five men, collided 3,000 feet in the air, exploded and fell flaming into the ocean. Among the victims was Kenneth Hawkes, top center, movie director, and husband of Mary Astor, film star, lower right. Among the others who perished were Hallock Rouse, pilot of one of the planes, upper left; Conrad Wells, head cameraman for Fox Films, lower left; and Max Gold, assistant film director and former handball champion, lower center. Capt. Roscoe Turner, well known aviator, upper right, pilot of a third plane carrying a stunt man who was to be photographed by cameramen in the other two, escaped being in tragedy.

Youth Jailed On Charge Of Murder

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 4.—Said to have confessed to the fatal shooting of Jennings Behling, 19, of McDonald, near here, Edward Nevergall, 20, of Robinson township, is in the Washington county jail today, charged with murder.

County authorities report that Nevergall told them he and Peter Romish of McDonald, had visited several girls in Oakdale the night of December 22, and that as they returned home he decided to hold-up the city garage where he had been employed. According to county authorities, he had Romish let him out of the car in front of the garage and after his companion drove on, Nevergall started on the hold-up.

Nevergall lost his nerve when he encountered Behling, night attendant, and fired his gun at him, according to the alleged confession. He ran away, then, not knowing that he had shot Behling.

Behling died 10 hours later, in Mercy hospital, Pittsburgh.

Seek New Outlet At Northern End Of Perry Highway

Survey Is Being Made To Establish Definite Route Through Crawford County

According to reports emanating from Crawford county, a new route is being sought by the State Highway department from Sheakleyville in Mercer county, north to Meadville in Crawford county.

A new route has been staked out by state highway engineers from the Sandy Creek township line nearly to Sheakleyville.

According to reports which are current in that district three routes are being staked out from the end of the present brick road near Sheakleyville to Meadville. Final decision on which route will eventually be used is to be made later by the highway department.

The route which has been recently surveyed, cuts through a number of farms in that district and does not follow any road now in use.

Tonight at the regular Saturday night service E. Phall of the Simpson M. E. church will speak and tomorrow night Adjutant W. B. Powle of Pittsburgh headquarters will speak. The adjutant has been connected with the special efforts department for the last ten years and has come to New Castle at regular intervals. His visit will be in connection with the special "Jubilee Crusade" now being conducted in the local corps.

Child Awarded To Her Mother

Court Decides That Mrs. Nora Pearl Norris Is To Have Margaret Ann Craig

In the case of Mrs. Nora Pearl Norris against Jefferson Craig, and William and Minnie Frantz, in which Mrs. Norris was seeking to get possession of her daughter, Margaret Ann Craig, Judge Hildebrand has handed down a decision in which the custody of the child is awarded to the mother.

This case has been before the court several times on habeas corpus proceedings. Mrs. Norris was formerly the wife of Craig, they having been divorced. Later, Mrs. Craig married George J. Norris. In the meantime Mr. Craig had the child placed with Mr. and Mrs. William Frantz, uncle and aunt, respectively of the child.

When a former effort was made to secure the child by Mrs. Norris, it was soon after her marriage to Norris. Judge Hildebrand, in his opinion, says that realizing that the marriage was still in the experimental stage, the child was awarded to the father.

However it now appears that Mrs. Craig's marriage to Norris, is now well established. They are living at Charleston, W. Va., where Mr. Norris conducts a branch brokerage office, and is employed on a salary of $5,000 a year, in addition to a share of commissions.

The court finds that Mr. and Mrs. Norris are well able to support the child, and that in this event, the mother has a paramount right to its custody.

The order provides that the father and Mr. and Mrs. Frantz can see the child at certain times, and a bond is required of Mr. and Mrs. Norris, guaranteeing this right.

Ten Injured In Bus Crash

Bus Plunges Into Ditch After Colliding With Freight Truck

(International News Service) BELLEVUE O., Jan. 4.—Investigation was started here today into a bus crash late yesterday in which 10 persons were injured, four of them seriously.

The bus plunged into a four-foot ditch after having skidded on an ice-coated road and having collided with a heavy freight truck.

According to witnesses the driver of the bus put on the brakes in order to avoid hitting an automobile ahead of him. In doing so, the bus skidded, swinging the rear of the coach into the middle of the road and into the path of an east-bound freight truck. The truck smashed head on, plunging the bus off the road into the ditch.

Four of the injured persons were taken to Bellevue hospital where they were treated for injuries. Six other persons were treated for minor injuries at the scene of the crash. There were more than 40 passengers in the bus.

The four taken to the Bellevue hospital are Mrs. Martha Morris, 72 of Detroit; Miss Lois Ordway, 24 of Ann Arbor, Mich.; Earl Fohl, 25 of Aspers, Pa. and Peter Galindo 31 of Detroit. All are expected to recover.

SMALL FIRE IN CROTON HOME TODAY

Fireman Malley of the Croton department answered a call from the home of W. S. Beck of 418 Martin street at 9:30 this morning. A piece of paper had been pasted over a chimney hole, which ignited setting fire to the wall paper around the hole. Occupants of the home extinguished the blaze and then called the Third ward department. Fireman Malley satisfied himself that the fire had been extinguished. The damage will amount to approximately $15.

"King" Of Hoboes Makes Visit Here

Man Who Claims This "Honor" Stops Off Here For Short Time

"There was a king in the city today. In fact it was none other than J. Leon Lazarowitz, aged 24, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who for the past ten years has been traveling here and there by side door pullman, automobile or on foot, seeking new interests in life without expense to himself. He has been king of the Order of Hoboes since 1927.

He has traveled 373,044 miles in that time, visited all known countries in the world except Russia, every state in the union and every city of size, except Spokane, Wash., for which place he is now bound. His next stop is Indianapolis, Indiana, and all mail is being addressed to him at that place care of the Jewish Community Center.

He arrived here sore footed last night from Sharon and went to the Jameson Memorial hospital, which institution sent him to Dr. H. C. Harper, who attended to his foot.

He was elected King of the Hoboes at Minneapolis, Minn., September 10, 1929, and re-elected at Chicago, November 5, 1929. He is an honorary member of 118 automobile clubs, 43 Chambers of Commerce and 21 Y. M. H. A's.

He spent the night in the local jail as the guest of the city and being an Orthodox Jew, attended services at Tifereth Israel Synagogue today. He does not travel on Saturday. He plans to cease this life in a year or two.

MARRIAGE LICENSE PROCURED.

A marriage license was issued January 3 in Cumberland, Md., to Wylie Franklin Luske and Marion Victoria Woodcock of this city.

License Plates For Paul's Car Arrive

Friends Will Endeavor To Have Plates Cancelled As They Cannot Be Used

Corporal Brady Paul, slain state highway patrolman, had a coupe and a few days after his death the license plates for his automobile arrived at the state highway patrol here. Under the state motor law the plates cannot be used.

It is pointed out that the plates were issued to Paul and for the particular car. An effort will be made by citizens here to have the license cancelled.

"Surely the state of Pennsylvania, which lost such a valiant member of the highway patrol, would not want the license money," the citizen said.

Nearly 24,000 Deer Killed This Season

Some astounding facts are seen in a preliminary report of the deer kill for this season, the report being issued recently by the Pennsylvania Board of Game Commissioners. Hon. Jared M. B. Reis of this city, vice president of the board has a copy of the preliminary report.

A total of 22,394 legal deer were killed this season, and 1,281 illegal deer killed, a total of 23,675 deer killed in 12 days in Pennsylvania, a record which has never been approached by any state in the United States.

The season was 12 days long which means that there were nearly 2,000 deer killed each day, and the number of deer not badly depleted at that. Hunters killed 438 legal bear and 26 illegally, while 12 legal elk were killed and eight illegally. A total of 3,361 wild turkeys were killed.

Clearfield county reported the largest kill of deer, 2,106 legal and 119 illegal kills being reported. Center county reported 39 legal bears killed and one illegal kill. Elk county reported four of the total elk killed and Lawrence county gets into the record with three wild turkeys.

Noted Cartoonist Taken By Death

Claire Briggs, Famous Newspaper Cartoonist Dies In New York Hospital

(International News Service) NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Many thousands throughout the United States familiar with his cartoon series "When a Feller Needs a Friend," "Ain't it a Grand and Glorious Feeling" and "The Days of Real Sport" today were saddened by the passing of Claire Briggs.

Briggs one of America's most popular cartoonists died at the Neurological institute following a recent operation necessitated by an illness of several months. He was afflicted last August with a malady that threatened his eyesight and was sent to Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore for treatment. Somewhat improved he returned to New York but about six weeks ago was stricken with bronchial pneumonia and since that time his condition has been critical. He was 54.

Funeral services are to be held here on Monday. Until then the body will lie in state in the gold room of the funeral church.

Cresson Youth Is Killed By Train

(International News Service) ALTOONA, Pa., Jan. 4.—"Don't tell daddy I was playing on the tracks."

With these words, Merle Berkeimer of Cresson, near here, lapsed into unconsciousness and died within a few hours in an Altoona hospital.

The lad was badly crushed when he was run over by a draft of six loaded cars at the Cresson colliery, where he had been forbidden to play.

Coroner Chester C. Rothrock today instigated an investigation into the fatal accident.

Its age is a private matter

It is very difficult to discover, by its appearance, how old a Lincoln is. Lincoln believes in making automobiles so beautiful that they are always modern — so durable that they simply won't wear out. The age of a Lincoln is no one's concern—least of all its owner's. On the boulevard a Lincoln of last season and the newest model share honors equally with Lincoln years older than either.

So fine is this car that a year or so of use does not perceptibly detract from any of its splendid qualities. Lincoln owners are often men who can, and do, provide the best professional care for their cars. Sometimes such well-kept cars are available at very attractive prices from Lincoln dealers. The wisdom of investing in such a motor car is quite evident, and shrewd buyers are quick to take advantage of the opportunity.

A few such Lincolns are now to be seen on our floor. Every one is in perfect mechanical condition. We are always glad to demonstrate them to you, without the slightest obligation. Drop in today.

Sheriff Reynolds Leaves Office With Excellent Record For Four Years

Four years ago today Harrison M. "Buck" Reynolds was preparing to take the oath of office as sheriff of Lawrence county. Today Sheriff Harrison M. "Buck" Reynolds is preparing to leave the office, for his term of duty is over. On Monday morning, Frank N. Johnston will take over the reins.

Buck's election as sheriff was one of the things the wise boys said couldn't happen. For many years he had been a city policeman, and at the time he announced for sheriff he was a motorcycle officer. He was warned not to run, but he did. They told him he couldn't win, but he did. And now he is preparing to step back into the ranks of the ordinary citizen, but with him goes a host of recollections of the four busy years spent in the court house.

Over 5000 Prisoners.

When Sheriff Reynolds assumed office there were about 30 prisoners in the county jail. In the four years he has served he has had charge of about 5000 men and women charged with crime, and of the entire group, not a one has escaped. Attempts have been made, the most recent one being just a week or so ago, but Buck had the escapes licked before they started. The last one nearly cost him a thumb when a group of irate prisoners rushing to a door he was closing, nearly mashing off the thumb on his left hand.

By rather a coincidence, the first prisoner committed to the Lawrence county jail in Sheriff Reynolds's care escaped, but not from here. He was taken to Dixmont from which institution he escaped. The first prisoner taken to the Western penitentiary by Sheriff Reynolds escaped, but not from him. The man got away some time after he was put into the Western pen.

Buck has had as high as 14 women in the county jail at one time, and 75 men. At the present time the total runs about 60 with all but about six.

H. M. REYNOLDS

men. There is one small baby in the jail at the present time its mother being confined there on a liquor charge. Six babies have been in the jail at various times, Sheriff Reynolds making provision for the youngsters along with the mothers.

Largest "Execution".

A number of records have been made by Sheriff Reynolds. One is the fact that he served the largest execution in the history of Lawrence county, it being for over $530,000 on an Ellwood City plant. In fees he has collected nearly $100,000 which have been turned over to the county. Under the old law Buck would have kept these fees and paid his office expenses out of them, pocketing the rest. In paying out money he has written 6753 checks, and will turn over to Sheriff Johnston about $2800 in cash.

He has visited many jails and prisons with prisoners, but oddly enough, as many times as he has taken prisoners to the Western penitentiary has never gone through that institution. The jail in Lawrence county was never in better shape than it is now. In spite of its age and the difficulties of keeping it clean, Buck has kept the jail in splendid shape, has fed the prisoners, has handled the affairs of his office in an efficient way and saw to it that his deputies were men of character and ability.

As he leaves the office Sheriff Reynolds had the following statement to make: "It has been a pleasant four years, although a rather strenuous four years. I have made a lot of friends, and I want to thank the attorneys of the Lawrence County Bar association for their cooperation at all times."

"After four years of service as sheriff I think I am in a position to suggest some changes for the sheriff of this county. He should be given a house that is somewhere near modern. There should be a kitchen for the preparation of the prisoners' food, and I am firmly convinced that a high powered automobile mounted with a machine gun should be provided for emergency work in running down crooks."

Gigantic Plane For Passengers Being Invented

New Type Gigantic Airplane Will Support 170 People; For Ocean Crossing

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—Plans for construction of a gigantic trans-ocean plane capable of carrying 170 persons from Berlin to New York in a non-stop flight are being laid by Dr. Edmund Rumpler, noted German airplane engineer, it was learned Friday.

Dr. Rumpler, it is understood, will leave for New York sometime in February in an effort to enlist American backing in his enterprise. It is stated that a number of American bankers have signified their interest in Dr. Rumpler's "trans-oceanic double flying boat," which is heralded as one of the most ambitious airplane projects in recent years.

The Rumpler flying boat will be built to carry 170 persons, including crew, for more than 4,000 miles. It will dwarf in size the giant 12-motored Dornier D. O-X, which carried 169 persons in an hours flight over Lake Constance.

The D. O-X, however, cannot carry more than 35 persons for a distance of 2,000 miles.

The Rumpler plane will in reality be a gigantic wing superimposed on two powerful boat-like floats. The motors and passenger cabins will be located in this huge wing, while the fuel will be stored in the floats. Ten Moto, aggregating 10,000 horsepower, will supply the power needed to lift the craft's enormous weight of 125 tons.

Dr. Rumpler expects his machine to attain a speed of between 160 and 175 miles an hour.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

A mere man from Iowa, writes and asks me if men are to have any voice in this matter of the girls giving up short skirts for long ones, or if the girls are to fight it out alone.

"I understand," he says, "that these free street exhibitions of legs, good, bad and indifferent, are to end. The stage will, I take it, supply the demand for the sight of pretty underpinning. The idea brings back fond memories of bald-headed rows. I'll bet the theatres will do a much bigger business when the long skirts come into fashion. Men always have liked to look at pretty underpinning."

The man says he can't sign his name because his wife reads my column and might see it and be certain she won't like the idea of his writing this way. He signed himself: "Naughty Man."

You needn't waste any time worrying, Naughty Man. The girls will see to it that the men don't get bored. If the men like short skirts better, that's what they will get. Fashion is pretty arbitrary but if it insists that long skirts are the thing, the girls will arrange to have the skirts fall in divisions that will separate and show more knees than you ever saw before.

The whole idea may help the theatrical situation. It may put SOME clothes on the girls who hang from the wings of butterflies in the New York revues. If men don't see any knees on the streets they will be interested in seeing only knees on the stage and the girls can wear clothes again.

The chorus girls don't go one bit further than they have to in order to drag in box office receipts. They used to wear clothes before every woman puts on kilts. They had to do something that wasn't done on the streets or nobody would go to the revues. The poor chorus girls got blamed for things they were graded into by our best people.

When society wears more clothes, the chorus will wear a little less. When society wears few clothes the chorus wears hardly any. After all when you plunk down $6.60 (and up) for a ticket you want something you don't see sitting on the front porch at home.

Chorus girls have been maligned in the past, but not any more. They have been found working hard, graduating into expensive roles, going home every night to their mothers, and walking off with the season's best matrimonial catches. The reason being that it is the men who are best judges of feminine values. (If I'm wrong write me.)

Detroit Gunman Taken In Custody

(International News Service) Detroit, Jan. 4.—Joe Mocerri, alleged gang leader who is reported to have threatened to "get" police inspector Henry J. Garvin was arrested Friday for investigation in the shooting of the police official in an assassination attempt. An 11 year old school girl was wounded by stray shots meant for Garvin.

Mocerri's arrest was secret and he was held at headquarters several hours before his detention was announced. He is booked on a technical assault with intent to kill pending investigation.

Garvin is quoted as saying that Mocerri threatened to "get" him just two days before Christmas. The gang leaders made the same threat six months ago. It is alleged, when Garvin punched him on the nose for attempting to prevent the arrest of a robbery suspect.

- Chevrolet announces

THE GREATEST CHEVROLET IN CHEVROLET HISTORY

Today, Chevrolet presents the Greatest Chevrolet in Chevrolet History—a smoother, faster, better Six—with new bodies by Fisher.

Basically, it is the same sturdy, substantial Six which won such tremendous popularity in 1929. But it is a greater car in every way—for it embodies every worth while advancement that a year of engineering research has developed. There are scores of vital improvements which contribute to every phase of comfort, performance, endurance and safety!

An improved six-cylinder valve-in-head motor, with its capacity increased to 50 horsepower; four Delco-Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers; fully-enclosed internal-expanding weather-proof brakes; a new dash gasoline gauge; heavier and stronger rear axle; Fisher non-glare windshield; larger tires—

—these are typical of the many improvements which make this car the Greatest Chevrolet in Chevrolet History.

But most impressive of all from the standpoint of the motor car buyer, is the sensational dollar for dollar value which this new car provides. For, in spite of its finer quality—this smoother, faster, better Six has been made available—

-at greatly reduced prices!

During 1929, more than a million three hundred thousand persons bought six-cylinder Chevrolets. This enormous volume production has made possible many savings in the Chevrolet factories—and, in keeping with its long-established policy, Chevrolet is sharing these savings with the public. No written description can do justice to the extra value and quality provided in this new car. Visit your Chevrolet dealer—see this car—ride in it—and judge for yourself the sensational value it represents.

SHORT ROMANCES OF EVERYDAY LIFE

Alabamy Boys

By Hazel Courtney

A HUGE city block is being erected behind the Carroll building. From the Carroll Lunch on the sixth floor the waitresses—Ruth, Irene, Anna, Kathleen and Marjorie—may look down at the thrilling spectacle of turning dericks, tilting girders, and men swinging with fly-like nonchalance over dizzy scaffolding. A man may look up and catch a girl's eye, while performing some particularly perilous feat, and laugh with glee at her horror.

The men are young and lean, good-looking. It happened on a Friday that each of the girls selected her favorite and gave him all of her attention from the windows above. Saturday Ruth and Irene, Anna and Kathleen had forgotten their choices, but not Marjorie aged 17, the youngest flapper in the group. By some telepathic means she made known her interest to its object. The next Tuesday she had news for her friends: "I met him down there last night after work and he walked up home with me. He's a thriller. He's from the South. Alabama—and got the keenest drawl. Gee I love to hear Southerners talk! I'm going to call him 'Alabamy.'"

Ruthie brought down a dripping wet, heavy blanket. "What about Jack?" "Oh hang Jack!"

Marjorie's reply was swift but unconvincing. She didn't want to "hang" Jack. For weeks she had gone out with him nearly every night, to the show, canoeing, swimming. She talked about him so incessantly that he was far better known in the Carroll than Ruth's Eddie, Irene's Bill, Anna's Walt, or Kathleen's Stewie. It did not take a keener observer than Ruth to read Marjorie's conversation as the barometer of her emotions. The cloud of "Alabamy" was indicated in the barometer. Somewhere a storm was brewing.

Marjorie remained silent through the hurry of the lunch hour. Her usually piquant face was sullen. She had no smile for customers who expected her vivacity.

Then she broke a cup. There were no consequences—the Carroll is run on the love plan the accident was significant. It occurred at the end of two hours of heated work, and of the longest period of silence that Marjorie had ever endured. Ruthie was there to catch the shattered cup and the tale of woe that broke with it.

"I didn't see Jack from Thursday to Sunday. He was off with the Other Girl Friday and Saturday nights, see? I was going to go out with him Sunday, so he came around. I was all dressed up in my new suit and my hair curled and I looked great. I don't care. So when he came around my kid sister was there with the feller she goes with, and he says: "Give him a good laying-out. Marjorie. We'll help you if you get stuck."

"So Jack came along and he said, 'Hello, Marjorie.'"

"I said, 'How do you do?'"

"He said, 'What's the matter?'"

"What's the matter?" I said. I sneered at him.

"He said, 'You're not sore are you?'"

"Oh, lay off, he said. 'You were going out with me today, weren't you? What shall we do, go canoeing?'"

"It's too cold to go canoeing," I ner stopped me to talk and kid me, and I was there when Jack came along again. Gee, he looked so when he saw me talking with those guys!"

"Gosh, Ruthie I can't think of anything but Jack. Gee, he used to be nice. He's the only feller I ever liked of all the boys I've ever known. Ain't love grand, Ruthie? Tell me about your feller and I'll tell you about mine."

Ruthie was not to be bribed. She had nothing to offer but advice.

"You forget your feller, kid, after the way he treated you," she pronounced scornfully. "Before I'd stand for that from a guy!"

"But, aw, gee!" wailed Marjorie. Thursday she appeared in a fresh wave and the new suit that had failed to impress Jack.

"I've got to do something for my broken heart," she explained, adding hastily: "Oh, it isn't broken, but I'm just sore, that's all; plain sore."

"Ruthie," she said later, "when I think what a crazy fool I've been! But he's worse, because he won't admit it. He said last night, 'You take things too serious. I never told you I was your steady.'"

"No," I said, "but you made me believe it. I broke dates for you, but now I'd kick myself first."

"I've kicked myself many a time," he said, "every time I asked you for a date."

"You should have told me so then," I said. "Goodbye for you."

A fresh wave and a new suit were seen that afternoon at the window that overlooked the new building. The lips of youth can do wonders though no sound pass through them, and understanding flashed across the space of three stories of resounding metal.

"I like to hear Southerners talk," rallied Marjorie. "I'm going out with Alabamy tonight."

"You don't know what hard luck is. There are so many of us in the family that there had to be three tables at mealtimes, and I always sat at the third one."

"What's hard about that?"

"It was fifteen years before I knew a chicken had anything but a neck!"

"Ma, did you ever hear a rabbit bark?"

"Rabbits don't bark, dear."

"That's funny. My story-book says that rabbits eat cabbage and bark."

Stolen Sweets

By Margaret Taylor

PAUL DENTON stared dully at the paper on which the figures he had scribbled seemed to execute a mocking dance. A dollar and a quarter, it appeared, lay between him and that undiscovered country—via starvation—from whose bourn no traveler returns. He had lost his position with the "Star," and there was no one from whom he could conveniently borrow.

He wondered, confusedly, how long it took a healthy man to die of hunger. Already he felt an aching void within. An exploration of the kitchen revealed nothing that might appease a persistent and unreasonable appetite, so dejectedly picking up a few old newspapers, Paul put them on the dumbwaiter. But in that act he paused, words sweeter than any symphony coming to his ears from the apartment of Mrs. Latrell, overhead.

Paul knew Mrs. Latrell. During his mother's illness, an illness which had brought him to the present financial crisis, that tender-hearted and efficient young matron had been a frequent and welcome visitor, bearing daily gifts of broth, jelly, and custard.

"What," the lady was saying, "are we going to do with this food? There's a whole chicken, several vegetables, a lemon pie, and this great cake. I suppose John's mother couldn't help getting sick on our wedding anniversary, but it does seem a pity to miss this lovely dinner."

"It certainly does," replied a soft sweet voice. "But you'd better hurry if you're going to meet John at the station. I'll put this food on the dumbwaiter for the janitress, and take my meals out until you return. I hate to eat alone."

There was a tug at the ropes. The dumbwaiter ascended. After a reasonable length of time Paul hauled it down, and shamelessly removed the roast chicken, vegetables, pie, and a cake of noble proportions. He feasted gloriously, not even the thought of the defrauded janitress. Returning later from another fruitless expedition in search of work he saw a girl standing before the row of letter-boxes in the hallway; a small, slim, and graceful girl, who threw him a quick glance before transferring her gaze to the letter-boxes again.

Paul sighed. She looked as if her acquaintance would be worth while. He had no appetite for what remained of the food he had nipped from the dumbwaiter, and went to bed in a very despondent frame of mind. It took him a long time to fall asleep.

He was awakened by what sounded suspiciously like footsteps in the kitchen. Listening intently, he heard it again, and, putting on dressing-gown and slippers walked noiselessly to the kitchen door. By the light filtering in from the street he discerned a trim, boyish figure removing bundles—small bundles—from the dumbwaiter to the table.

Paul touched the electric light button nearby and discovered that the burglar—or, rather, the burglar-ette—was the young lady he had seen studying the letter boxes in the hallway that day.

"How—how did you get in?" he asked after a moment of dazed silence.

"Through—through the dumbwaiter, the pinkest, most embarrassed burglar in the world replied. "I was hoping—you wouldn't hear me. My sister, Mrs. Latrell, told me what a tender son you'd been, and I heard you taking off the things meant for the janitress. I was afraid—you might be hungry, and—I couldn't bear the thought. I—I didn't intend any harm."

She took a frightened glance around, and fled, panic-stricken, using the door this time.

Paul didn't sleep any more that night. Food for the mind as well as the body had been brought to him. How did a man behave—what did he say—to an adorable creature who brought him sustenance because she couldn't bear to see him suffer?

Three months later, as they were leaving for their honeymoon, Paul paused on his way to the waiting taxi and pressed a yellow-backed bill into the hand of the janitress, eagerly watching her departure.

"I owe her much more than I can ever repay," he said, his arm clasping Adele tightly in the seclusion of the taxi. "You see, in a way she introduced me to you!"

Without a Home

meat.

"Where you bound, stranger?" asked the man.

"Oh, somewhere's its warm," answered Wandering Willie, with his mouth full of bread. "Guess I'll hit towards Florida."

"That's just where I want to go," said the man, showing interest. "But she thinks we shouldn't leave the farm."

"I tell him we're too old to go gallivantin' 'round to strange places," the woman said sharply. "We're just gettin' our farm comfortable, and now I want to enjoy it."

Wandering Willie looked at her graying hair and her work-wrinkled hands. He saw the struggle it had been. Absent-mindedly he poked at his worn-out shoes.

"I wonder if you wouldn't want some shoes that are heavier than those?" she volunteered. She went out of the room and a few minutes later returned with some old shoes and a coat.

"Jim's just come to see that sick horse," she said, turning to her husband. "You'd better go speak to him."

Her husband grunted and went out.

Swiftly the woman turned to Wandering Willie.

"Do you want some clothes and money?" she asked quickly. "Without workin' for them?"

Wandering Willie looked up, too surprised to speak. What was she driving at?

The woman went on: "You can have them, and this—" she held out a two dollar bill—"if you talk my husband into stayin' on the farm."

The door slammed and the farmer again came in. He slouched into a chair and refilled his pipe.

"So you're goin' to Florida?" he questioned. "Like it there do y'?"

Wandering Willie glanced uneasily at the woman. She nodded and frowned, to remind him of their bargain.

Wandering Willie sighed and began his story. "Well, it's a place to go," he said heavily. "I ain't always been like this, y' see."

"Haven't you, now?" the man half questioned.

It was a sad story that Wandering Willie told. The farmer's wife wiped her eyes when he had finished. He told of the wife he had once had, then how he had become discontented, and wanted to leave their happy home to go traveling. They had finally gone, much against his wife's wishes, only to have her die in a strange country, far from home and friends.

"It's a terrible thing to get to wanderin'!" he finished sadly. "Y' can't never stop, once y' start."

The farmer sighed and blew his nose.

"Well," Wandering Willie rose and wiped his lips on the back of his hand—"guess I'll be gettin' on. Gettin' restless agin'."

"You can have a bunk in the back room if you want to stay," offered the farmer. "We've got plenty of room."

Wandering Willie hesitated, and looked toward the woman. She moved her head toward the door.

"Nope," said Wandering Willie, sorrowfully. "It like to, but I can't."

"To bad." The farmer shook his head. "I pity a man without a home."

Once, going down the long avenue of trees with the coat on his back and the shoes under his arm, he looked around at the farm house.

"It's you I have to thank for it, you!"

"Never mind, my dear. Just remember to do to others that which is best for yourself, and you'll come out the winner."

Frances is as proud as ever of her complexion. It never was bad, but that is a secret that Phil keeps to himself. And when Junior was born, Frances compelled Phil solemnly to promise to make a pharmacist out of him.

The Poet's Typewriter.

"How fascinating, dear to see you playing on those keys," said the poet's tender sweetheart. "It sounds like melodies!"

But after they were wed, alas! The wife cried every day: "That almost ceaseless banging is awful I must say!"

Different Cases

By Clyde Weldon

FRANCES had the most beautiful complexion of all the girls in Everett. Colorless, yet her clear, smooth olive skin needed no tinting to add to its alluring charm. She neither killed her healthy pores with painted poison, nor did she take any special care of it. Just kept clean, all over.

That's what her best friend, the druggistman told her to do. The druggistman that was everybody's friend—her druggistman, Phil—the jolly proprietor of the corner pharmacy with its ample twin show windows shining a broad welcome to all passersby.

He knew Frances ever since she was born, 20 years ago, and cared for her as her parents would, if they were living. In turn Frances adored this middle-aged man.

"You've got a heart like a trolley car—always room for one more," Frances once told him during their nightly chats in the back room of his store. "I am going to report on two of your cases. Remember young Gleason in whom you had drilled the virtue of thrift? He opened a hardware store with his own saved-up money. And Mrs. Jones' son whom she called 'useless,' because he dilled around with baking powder, blueing and such truck, and you persuaded her to let him go to college? He was graduated as first class chemical engineer! He's coming to see you tomorrow."

"So-ho," said Phil as he carefully enclosed measured quantities of compounded white powders in oblong white papers. "I wonder if he is coming to see only me. Young lady."

"I'll help you trim the windows tomorrow," laughed Frances, "so I suppose he'll see me, too."

"Let's go back to our subject of your cases. How did you start it?"

Run along to your room, before your landlady locks you out."

The next day, and the days after that, were interesting ones to Phil. He was watching his "Complexion Case," actually falling in love with his "Engineering Case." A simple wedding was held in June. The genial old man almost burst with pride when the young couple invited him to dinner. But the things he discovered during that meal saddened him. When he returned to his store, he said to himself, "Canned soup, canned fish, canned meat, canned fruit." He shook his head. "Tisn't natural. Something's goin' to happen."

When Frances did not visit him two days in succession he was sure something had happened. On the third morning, as he was sweeping the floor, Frances entered. Her eyes were quite red.

"Large morning. Lots of sky out this morning," he cheerfully greeted. "Feeling perk?"

"No, thank you. I feel I'm going to leave my husband," she said quietly.

"So?" said Phil. "He was in here yesterday for some medicine. His stomach is bothering him. Looks bad."

"What can I do?"

"He says you've been giving him so much ready-to-bake, ready-to-fry, and ready-to-eat stuff, that he is ready to die."

"I can't cook for him. I've always eaten out, and I can't start messing with pots and pans, and measures. It's too late to learn now!"

"It's never too late. The cook book is handy, and it is the easiest thing in the world to learn. Besides," and he looked at her closely. "It appears to me that your skin is losing its lovely shade."

Alarmed, she examined it in a mirror.

"It looks all right to me."

"An outside eye can tell better," he nodded. "It's breaking out, and I'm sure it's the food."

"What shall I do for it?" she asked, forgetting for the moment her important trouble.

"Fresh cooked food, is the only remedy. You'd better start now, my dear, before it's too late. Try the cook book. You will not only be doing good for yourself, but your husband will also benefit by it."

At last she promised to try. At home, she prepared meals with the cook book in her left hand. The bread came out heavy, or burnt, or baked well on the outside and raw on the inside; the vegetables looked like mashed potatoes; cookies came out like bullets; custards looked like soup, and dumplings like baseballs. Almost all the time she forgot to put in salt. But she persevered. Patiently, steadily, she learned. And when the church fair came 'round in three months, she took part. For the best prepared meal she got first prize, an electric cooking range! After the people had congratulated her, she and her proud husband, she hurried to her druggistman.

THE solemn gray splendor of where the magnificent murals had just been unveiled, Aunt Lou puffing a bit with her years and the unusual attention that her nephew, who was president of the Amnaco Woolen Company and director of no one knew how many banks, was paying her.

It was all very tiresome to Jonathan. For a moment he wished he were built of weaker stuff, so that he might enjoy the paintings, but he rejected the wish as sentimental. No real man would be interested, he mused. Then he bowed with inward satisfaction to Louisiana, the steel magnate, who had recognized him from a further corner of the room. Louisiana seemed to be enjoying the pictures as much as the ladies who accompanied him. Strange.

Aunt Lou and Ethel were in repressed raptures over the paintings. Jonathan did not know that their souls gloried in the display of color that had been inhibited in their cramped New England atmosphere. One picture alone held Jonathan's attention, that of Saint-Gaudens and his mother, where the boy's fine sensitive face pierced with its incredible pallor the blackness of the background. He sat down upon a bench to get a better view of it.

He could stand anything, he thought grimly, but admit to Aunt Lou that Madelon has left him! Jonathan King! It was incredible—and all over a silly idea, too. Just because he wouldn't admit that women were men's equals!

They passed up the long flight of marble stairs, under the dome screen the unholy knowledge of his soul.

Presently Aunt Lou and Cousin Ethel caught up with him.

"Ethel wants to see the old laces, while we're here," Aunt Lou was plaintively embarrassed. "Of course you won't want to come, but will you mind waiting?"

"Certainly not," said Jonathan, with an amiability which he did not feel. "I'll do the sculpture and meet you at the front entrance when you are through. Don't hurry."

After a bit of circling in the wrong direction he managed to find the Greek sculpture. No enthusiasm stirred his breast. The incompleteness of the statues disturbed his sense of order and the eyes of the guard who regarded him with distrust annoyed him. Did the fellow think he was going to walk off with the warrior's horse in his pocket?

Plainly, Jonathan King's world was out of tune. If only he could admit that women were equal to men, Madelon would come back. She had said so, knowing truly that Jonathan would not say it unless he believed it.

Poor Jonathan! Brought up in a family where men talked and women listened; where men ordered and women obeyed; where a woman was not allowed to express an opinion, if she had one, until, widowed and in her dotage, no one wanted to listen to her opinions anyway.

He passed into an adjoining room where a huge stone vault occupied the center of space. He read the inscription mechanically, "Sarcophagus." Oh, yes—he had read somewhere about it—a coffin of stone which the Greeks used for burial.

He came nearer, scrutinizing it curiously. The cover made him catch his breath.

Carved out of an enormous slab of stone, two figures, a man and a woman, lay in each other's arms. Its beauty thrilled him through and through. There was no thought here of feminine equality or inequality.

For a moment he felt himself in the place of this Greek warrior who had loved his wife not "unto death," as Madelon and Jonathan had vowed, but beyond death, unto eternity. He had loved her so greatly that his conception of heaven was the heaven of her arms, and so through the centuries they had rested together, undisturbed by death and decay.

Something within Jonathan King stirred, and with his birth went the sense of his own superiority. He felt very small and humble as he waited in the telephone booth in the foyer of the museum while the operator put in a long-distance call to Madelon. Finally, he heard her voice.

"Dear," he said, penitently, "you are right and I'm wrong. Will you come home to me as soon as you can? I've found the most beautiful thing in the world and I want to show it to you."

The World's Beauty

By Parke Whitney

In front of him passed a small foreigner leading by the hand his frightened, timid wife, whose black eyes roved uneasily beneath her scarlet tam-o'-shanter. They passed in hurried review the stately aristocracy of New England and the less severe aristocracy of Old England. Before a study of sunlight and shadows on an old Italian stairway they stood in ecstasy. This was a bit of the old homeland, whose warmth and coolness they had felt, transplanted by magic to a bit of canvas. Their hands pressed more tightly to each other.

"Sentimental bosh," growled Jonathan and went through the arch to the gallery where the charcoal portraits hung.

He smiled grimly at the characteristics of the models which the artist had managed to bring out. Not all of them were wholly flattering, particularly the old fellow on the right, whose eyelids drooped to the world and I want to show it to you."

Local High Quintet Wins In Final Forty Seconds

Russell Hannon's Two Fouls Decided Close And Hard Fought Game

Victory Is Third Of Season And First In League For New Castle

East Brook Tops New Wilmington

Take 21-17 Victory From College Town Boys; Girls Lose Game

By CHARLES LANDOLF
MARS, Pa., Jan. 4.—New Castle High School's undefeated basketball team started the W. P. I. A. L. "race" on the right track here, Friday night when they nosed out a small but fast Mars High Quintet in the final minutes of play, 19-18. The victory was the first in the League and the third of the season for the New Castle.

New Castle was trailing by three points in the final minutes of play and it looked like the Coach Bridenbaugh team would bow down in defeat. Francis Waino cut the lead down to two points when he made good a foul. Hannon evened the count when he made a nice shot from the side of the floor. Mars took the lead again, by one point when A. DeMatt caged a foul. The foul was awarded Mars because New Castle had taken time out four times. A team is permitted to take time out three times during a game.

Hannon's Fouls Mean Victory
With but 40 seconds to play and the score favoring Mars 18-17, it was up to Russell Hannon to "bring home the bacon" when he was awarded two fouls. Amidst a thunder of roar and boos, Hannon made good both tries, giving New Castle the lead 19-18. Twenty seconds were left until the game was over. The game ended with New Castle in possession of the ball in the northern part of the gym away from the opponents.

Small Floor
New Castle was handicapped throughout the game due to the size of the floor which contained no boundary lines and which was exceptionally small.

The game was fast and was close throughout with neither team piling up a commanding lead. The first quarter ended 4-4. Campbell and J. DeMatt contributed two fouls and A. DeMatt a field goal for Mars' four points. Waino made New Castle's four points when he dribbled down the floor for his first tally. His second goal was registered from the center of the court.

Half Ends 12-9
Hannon added two more points when he made one from the side of the court. A foul and field goal by A. DeMatt and Weinstein respectively gave Mars a one point lead for a minute at 7-6. Waino gave New Castle a three point lead when he made good two fouls and his third bucket of the game from the center of the court. Alexander scored down from the side to give New Castle a 12-7 lead. J. DeMatt caged two fouls as the half ended which favored New Castle 12-9.

Has Good Offense
The start of the third quarter found a fighting Mars team out on the floor playing an offensive game that molested the Red and Black cohorts throughout this period. Hannon was the only scorer for the Bridenbaugh coached roller. He made a good shot from the center which placed the lead on top 14-9. A. DeMatt and Weinstein made two goals from the center of the court in rapid succession to bring the score down to 14-13. Two more tallies by the DeMatt brothers for the Blue and Gold ended the third quarter with Mars holding a three point lead, 17-14.

The fourth quarter found New Castle fighting harder than ever for victory. Waino's foul and Hannon's third field goal of the game tied the score at 17 all. A. DeMatt scored on a foul to give Mars a one point lead. Hannon's two fouls in the last 40 seconds of play brought victory to the New Castle team. The game ended with New Castle leading 19-18.

In defeating Mars, New Castle defeated a team that won four out of five games so far this season. Mars lost one game by one point in the extra period of play.

Mars has a good team this year and is going to be hard to defeat. The victory for New Castle was the third this season and the first in the W. P. I. A. L. League of Section Three. In the three games New Castle has an average of 25 points per game while their opponents have scored but 52 points.

For New Castle the playing of Francis Waino and Russell Hannon was spectacular while A. DeMatt, J. DeMatt and Weinstein were the best for the losers.

KEEP IT UP NEW CASTLE
The summary of the game follows:
New Castle 19 Mars 18
Waino F A. DeMatt
Hannon F J. DeMatt
Alexander C Campbell
McAuley C Weinstein
Uram G Purvis
Score by periods:
New Castle 4 8 2 5—19

Substitutions: Mars: Dickey for Purvis and Anderson for Campbell. None for New Castle.
Field Goals: Waino 3, Hannon 3, Alexander, A. DeMatt 3, J. DeMatt, Weinstein 2. Fouls: New Castle 5 out of 11; Mars 6 out of 8.
Referee: Johnny Irwin, Pittsburgh
Time of quarters: Eight minutes
Scorekeeper: "Gig" Thomas, New Castle.

East Brook high school's visit to New Wilmington last night resulted disastrously for the college town quintet for they were defeated in one of the fastest games played on the high school floor this season. The final score: East Brook 21, New Wilmington 17.

P. Schuler forward for East Brook was the consistent scorer for his team while McConnell and E. Kwiat gave steady assistance. For New Wilmington, White, Gilliland, Hartwell and Kaufman a sub, played well.

In the preliminary game played between the girls and boys of both schools, East Brook's lassies lost out by the count of 47-13.

The summary of the boys game:
East Brook—21 N. Wilmington—17.
P. Schuler F Gilliland

Smiths Organize Basketball Five
The Smith's basketball team has been reorganized for the basketball season. Games are wanted with all first class junior teams.

The following players compose the Smiths team—Sheldone, Mastern, Di-Maccio, Zona, V. Banjo, Bartlett, F. Banjo, DeThorne and Giambotti. The Smiths team won the junior championship last year and are out to regain it this season. The Smiths opened their season last night by meeting the Croton Progressive Club at the Carnegie Auditorium.

Games are especially desired with the following teams: West Pittsburgh, Wampum, Princeton, Mt. Jackson, Enon Valley and Harlansburg, also any other first class teams. For games call 2167 J, or write to R. Vigniano, 505 South Jefferson street, New Castle, Pa.

Progressives Win Over Princeton Hi
The Progressive basketball team of New Castle won a 37 to 16 verdict over the Princeton High School team, in a game played at the Princeton High floor. Richards and Johns were the stars for the winners, with Richards sinking eight baskets and Johns five. Farrell and Perry were the best for the Princeton team.

The summary:
Progressives 37 Princeton 16
Richards F Curry
Johns F Perry
Stewart C Farrell
Leonelli G Jones
Morgan G Schuler
Subs: Leonelli, Detrick, Perotta, Schuler.
Field Goals: Richards 8, Johns 5, Stewart 3, Morgan, Farrell 4, Perry 2, Fouls—Progressives 3 out of 6; Princeton 4 out of 8. Referee—Smith, Timmer Lastoria. Scorer A. Rubies.

THE TALKIES RULE THE NATION
THE TALKIES HAVE GROWN TO BE THE MOST IMPORTANT THING IN AMERICAN LIFE AND SOME OF OUR PROMINENT CITIZENS PUT IN A SQUAWK.

ROSENTHAL WINS Over Leo Lomski
NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The New York Athletic commission to the contrary, Maxie Rosenthal is the best lightweight in the business today.

So agreed the majority of the 8,586 customers as they trooped out of Madison Square Garden last night after watching the Harlem clown cuff Leo Lomski at will in each of the ten rounds of their bout.

Whether the commission reinstates Maxie as a member in good standing of the recognized challengers for Tommy Loughran's vacant throne or not, the unorthodox fighting Rosenthal has proved himself complete master of Lomski. Not once during the entire course of the bout did the outsize "Aberdeen Assassin" land a solid blow. He tried with might and main to clip the fast-moving Maxie but always found his tar get just out of range.

Lomski Cut Up
At the final Rosenthal was unmarked, but Lomski was displaying neat cuts over each eye.

In one of the most hotly contested battles seen in the Garden for quite a while, George Courtney, Oklahoma cowboy, earned a ten-round decision over Joe Banovic of Birmingham, N. Y. In the eighth round Courtney dropped Joe to his knees with a terrific right to the stomach. Banovic claimed a foul but was told to get up and fight.

Banovic was found to be badly injured upon reaching his dressing room and was taken to the Polyclinic hospital for examination.

Arturo Scheckels, bald welterweight from Belgium, won on a foul from Canada Lee in the fifth round of a scheduled ten-rounder.

Just before Rosenthal and Lomski began their night's work, Primo Carnera stepped into the ring and was favored with an introduction. He got a big hand.

Ambassador Morrow is reported to have three officers in Washington. For his own sake we hope he doesn't try to put in an eight-hour day in each.—The Des Moines Tribune-Capital.

SIX IN FAMILY Flee From Home As Fire Occurs
UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 4.—Four small children and their parents escaped in their night clothing here early this morning when fire destroyed their home and that of a neighbor.

The fire, starting from an overheated furnace in the home of Joseph Habors, drove him and his family to the street when the crackling flames and acrid smoke awakened them. The house next door, owned by Herbert Conway, was also destroyed.

WESTMINSTER TRIMS Grove City 30 To 26
Ancient Rivals Finish Neck And Neck In Great Game In Ketter Gym; Two Overtime Periods Needed To Decide Issue; "Babe" O'Donovan And Delehungy Score Field Goals In Second Extra Period; Stavinsky And Hildebrand Best For Thorn Machine; Crowd Of 1,000 Nearly Exhausted When Game Ends.

By "BUGS" WALTHER
(News Staff Correspondent)
GROVE CITY, Pa., Jan. 4.—Was it that lucky silver half dollar that Andy McDonald carried in his vest pocket? Or was it the rabbit's foot that Jack Hulmes had neatly concealed in the first aid kit? That brought Westminster College floor team through one of the toughest basketball battles enacted on the Grove City College gym floor in many moons, and quite a lot of stars. The final score last night was 30 to 26, and the Titan Blue and White passers were in the front at the end of the second extra period. The game was played last night and today some 1,000 spectators are trying to find rooms in a sanitarium in which to regain their shattered nerves.

Class Stands Out
Just as there is a difference in class between a Ford and a Cadillac so was the finish of the spectacular contest between the two ancient rivals. Westminster's great combination just outwinded and exceeded the Grovers when the going became the toughest.

It was a case of the team that was in the best condition winning and Coach John Lawther's boys had the edge. "Skats" Delehungy and Capt. "Babe" O'Donovan supplied the two baskets that sent the groans of a large delegation of Westminster supporters back to New Wilmington with loud hurrahs.

A Close Finish
The game was that kind that leaves the fans as exhausted as the players. Ketter gym was jammed to the rafters, with several hundred drapery where there was a draping spot. The finish of the regulation game was 25-25, all tied up, and the nerves of the fans were frayed, but in that five-minute period of overtime play when both teams scored one foul apiece—well, what few nerves were left sufficed to keep the men, women and children hanging around to see if the game would end the same night, or possibly the boys would be out of the trenches by Lincoln's birthday. As it turned out, Westminster went over the top and the war was over.

The game started out like a race between a couple of turtles and finished like a race between two rabbits about November 2. The entire first half found both teams playing a cautious defensive game. Well, the score was 9-9 at the end of the first 20 minutes of play, figure it out for yourself. The lead seemed to go back and forth so often the first stanza that the fans were dizzy trying to keep up with the artists.

Terrible Foul Shooting
There was an elegant display of form shown at the foul line by both teams in the first half—all form and no fouls to speak of. Westminster had 1 out of 6, and Grove City 1 out of 7. Not bad, but still not good good, either—oh, far from it. Coach John Lawther switched his lineup as often as a yard engine moves freight cars, but none of the boys could seem to locate the basket either from a standpoint of field goals or fouls. And before we forget it, the blue and white boys missed enough shots at the hoops in the first half to win three games.

It was a replica of the 1928-29 team that Coach Lawther sent to the court at the start of the second half, with O'Donovan and Delehungy at the forwards, Crowell at center and Fisher and Rice at the guards. Things were different right away.

Groves Take Lead
Grove City shot into the lead at 12 to 9 soon after the half opened. Westminster did not tie the score until Crowell sank a long one to knot the count at 19-19 about midway of the period. Coach Thurn saw his star player, Joe Stavinsky, from South Manchester, Conn., put out of the game on the four personal foul route, and Rankin, the veteran, took his place. It must be said for "Stavy" that he played a whale of a game and looks like a comer. Burke began to get tired and Thurn sent in a chap named Mike McCann, hailing also from South Manchester, and the boys fouls to break up the game.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dicks, of New Castle, called on Dr. and Mrs. Floyd Blair on New Year's eve.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Boak and daughter Martha returned to State College Thursday morning.

Raymond Munnell returned to Grove City, Thursty, from South Manchester, Conn., put out of the game on the four personal foul route, and Rankin, the veteran, took his place. DETROIT, Jan. 4.—Neither Charles Arthur the great Shires nor his manager, Nelsie Blumenthal, approached Vance Gildersleeve pilot of battling Criss and demanded that Criss go in to the tank for the White Sox first basemen, local advice state.

Gildersleeve Friday refused to name the man or men who came to him in his home in Rockwood on the so-called diving mission.

"I don't know Shires and I don't know his manager, Blumenthal," said Gildersleeve. "Boxing Commissioner James M. Brown has my signed statement and he doesn't want me to give out any information until the commission meets January 9."

"I'm not afraid to talk because my fighters go on the square. But, as far as I am concerned, the matter rests with the boxing commission."

Butler High Wins From Zelienople
Butler high school started the W. P. I. A. L. race on Friday night by taking the measure of Zelienople 34-14 at Butler. Butler is one of the strong teams in Section three who will oppose New Castle on January 26. New Castle also plays Zelienople high here on Friday night.

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Jan. 4.—Graduate Manager A. McDonald of Westminster college has announced that another game has been added to the Westminster basketball schedule. Youngstown Y. M. C. A. College, defeated by the Titans 36-16 in a pre-season game, will play at New Wilmington next Saturday night, January 11.

This will give Lawther's men three games in four days, as Thiel will be met on the home floor Friday, January 10, and Geneva will be met on the home floor Monday, January 13. District fans will, therefore, have an opportunity of seeing Westminster in action two times next week.

With the Youngstown Y. College game, the Titans have a regular schedule of 17 games. This, together with six pre-season games, makes an attractive card with plenty of competition.

Four Good Games In Church Loop On Friday Night
Temples, Wesley M. E., First Baptists, and Mahoning M. E. Win Games

Four fast and exciting basketball games were played in the New Castle Church League at the "Y" floor on Friday night.

The Wesley M. E. team nosed out the First M. E. boys 17 to 15 in a close one, with B. McIver, Eckert, W. Rech and Gibson the big noises on both teams.

The First Baptists upset the St. Johns Lutherans 26 to 11 in a well played game. T. Wallace, W. Wallace and Gilbert featured with a flock of baskets.

The Mahoning M. E. team handed Croton a 19 to 15 setback in the final game, with Nolan and Spencer the high scorers of the battle.

Council To Have Organization Meet

ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 4.—The first meeting of the new year for the Ellwood borough council takes place Monday evening when the annual organization session takes place in the city building. Four new council men will be seated at this meeting, and old bills for the past year will be disposed of.

Among the new councilmen coming in are: Gail Morrison from the Third ward, and M. A. Riley and Mr. Mc-Daniel from the Fifth ward. Heads of various committees will probably be named at the meeting, and various plans for 1930 business discussed.

THE HAPPY BUNCH

of the Octette Club are scheduled to meet as guests of Miss Sallee Hazen of Fourth street on Monday night.

SERIOUSLY ILL
ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 4.—George Jr. son of Mr. and Mrs. George Fisher of Spring avenue was rushed to the local hospital last evening with a severe case of spinal meningitis. It is very doubtful if he will recover, although there was no change for the worse this morning.

Announcement Of Local Girl's Coming Marriage Made Here

Miss Evelyn Christley To Wed
Richard Hawk Of Pittsburgh,
At Early June Wedding

ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 4.—At a pretty bridge party Friday evening in the Elks Club, Miss Marie Christley formally announced the marriage in June of her sister, Miss Evelyn to Richard Hawk of Pittsburgh. Mr.
Hawk has been here for the past two years in the capacity of professor in the Lincoln school. Miss Christley herself teaches in the Hartman building.

Four tables of bridge were in play, and lovely decorations in roses made a pretty setting for the party. At the conclusion of a pleasant evening, score honors went to Miss Charlotte
Chambers, Miss Hilma Dahl and Miss Miriam Johnson.

Later a dainty lunch was served, carrying out the same pretty decorative notes, and Miss Mary Hemmerly assisted the hostess. Those enjoying the evening were: the Misses Blanch Fisher, Charlotte Chambers, Evelyn Christley, Gladys Conner,
Hilma Dahl, Isabel Morrison, Miriam Johnson, Miriam and Virginia Johnson, Catherine Lundgren, Dorothy Kimber, Dorothy McClintock, Mary
Blocher, Ruth Lundgren, Gladys
Grandy, Jean Graham, Catherine
Hemmerly, Mary Hemmerly and Mrs.
George Eely.

School Board To Meet Monday To Open Bids Here

ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 4.—Members of the Ellwood City Board of Education will have a special meeting in the board room of the Lincoln high school Monday evening for the purpose of opening bids for the completion of the Auditorium of the school building.

The general contract has been awarded, but minor contractors on plumbing, electricity, etc., will be let on Monday night. It is planned to have the structure completed for the June graduating festivities this year.
The completed auditorium will cost about $50,000 and will be very complete in detail. It will be provided with space for sound apparatus, and motion picture projection booth, and probably dimming arrangements on the auditorium and stage lighting system.

Many See Movie Of Holy Land Recital Friday

ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 4.—A good

Dames Of Malta Enjoy Meeting

ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 4.—A large crowd gathered in the K. of P. hall
Friday night for the semi-monthly Dames of Malta meeting. A business session was conducted and plans discussed regarding a bake sale.
The balance of the evening was taken up with dancing, after which the members adjourned until their next meeting on January 17.

ENTERTAINING TODAY
ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 4.—Mrs.
Frank Maltrup of Beaver Falls entertained today at a one o'clock bridge party. Among the local guests present were: Mrs. H. J. Jenkins, Mrs. J. H. Cline, Mrs. Theodore Markward and Mrs. Burton Bell.

Cardinal Gasparri Has Resigned Post

Pope Pius XI Accepts Resignation Of Cardinal Gasparri, Is Announced

(International News Service)
LONDON, Jan. 5.—Cardinal Gasparri's resignation from his post as papal secretary of state was accepted by Pope Pius XI today, according to a Central News dispatch received from Rome.

Although it has been known for almost two weeks that the noted prelate contemplated resigning because of advancing years and a desire for less rigorous work, it was thought his resignation would not become effective until after the anniversary of the signing of the Lateran treaties next month.

It is regarded as certain that Cardinal Pacelli, papal nuncio to Berlin, will be named to succeed Cardinal Gasparri.

What goes up must come down.
What baffles stock speculators is trying to determine which is coming next.

Donald Schroeder Dubs Man In Restaurant Santa Claus When Party Has Breakfast

BUTLER, Jan. 4.—You're Santa Claus, aren't you?" a four-year-old boy said to Thomas Carney, gray-bearded Park hotel roomer, when he entered the Crescent restaurant, 247 South Main street, to order breakfast, last Friday morning about 10 o'clock.

An hour later, the boy sat on the floorboard of a Chevrolet sedan parked on West Brady street beside the P. H. Butler store, around the corner on North Main street, waiting for his "mamma, papa, and Uncle Joe," who had gone into the store, telling him to be quiet until they returned.

Two hours later, the child looked on while "mamma, papa, and Uncle Joe" shot from their car at two highway patrolmen who had stopped the Chevrolet to question the occupants concerning a holdup in Butler earlier in the morning.

Carney, who was dubbed Santa Claus by Donald Schroeder, whom "mamma, papa, and Uncle Joe" had brought into the restaurant for breakfast after spending the night at the Arlington hotel, across the street, is 85, and for over 30 years was a resident of Sewellville, W. Va., near Beckwood, where Donald was found Tuesday, by police searching for the slayers of Corporal Brady Paul.

Bessemer Victor Over Union High

Local Tossers Unable To Cope
With Boro Quintet's
Fast Charges

BESSEMER GIRLS WIN PRELIMINARY
Inability to place their shots and a defense that proved somewhat ragged during important stages of the game brought defeat to the blue and white basketballers of Union high school at Bessemer last night. The Bessemer contingent took victory by a 25 to 12 score.

In a preliminary engagement to the main attraction, Union's girls succeeded in a hard-fought battle to find their winning streak and lost to the lassies of the boro by a 13-point margin, the same margin of defeat for the boys. Their score was 28-15.
The Bessemer boys held the lead in their game from the very outset to the finish of the final quarter. At half the half they were leading their county rivals by a 13-5 margin. Union threatened once, and that in the opening of the third period when a temporary assault was launched.
Union's defense soon crumbled when the boro lads found their stride and continued without much fear until the close of the game.

The lineups for both games follow:

Boys' Game
Bessemer, 25.	Union, 12.
Vlahos, F.	Crichlow
Stanish, F.	Zeremba
Plevnic, C.	Augustyn
Grist, G.	White
Levinson, G.	Jaworski
Substitutes—Bessemer: Johnson, M. H. Cichic, Kimenkin, Plevnic, Swanson, Stanley; Union: Latimer, Matjeja, Pietrowski, Smolnick, Ryhal, Plet goals: Critchlow, Augustyn 3, Stanish, White, Vlah, Stanish 3, Plevnic 5. Fouls: Union 1 out of 6; Bessemer 4 out of 10.
Referee: Shoell.
Girls' Game
Bessemer, 28.	Union, 15.
Throp, P.	Frank
Panella, F.	Frank
Behoski, F.	Carr
Radan, C.	Smith
Griffin, G.	Campbell
Bincic, G.	Kennedy
Substitutes—Union: Donley, Raymond, Carr and McCune.
Field goals: Patton 5, Donley 2, Throp 2 and Panella 9. Fouls: Union 6 out of 16; Bessemer 1 out of 6.
Referee: Kane.

Complaint Filed Against Water Company Today

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Jan. 4.—The State Department of Health today filed a formal complaint against the Dushore Company, alleging that "conditions surrounding the source of its water supply are impure, insanitary and potentially dangerous."
The Health Department also alleged that the water being supplied to consumers is impure, contaminated and "a source of danger to the lives and health of users thereof."

Bus Company Will Discontinue Line

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Jan. 4.—The public service commission today issued an order permitting the Logan Valley Bus Company to discontinue service between Tyrone and Ironville. A previous application was denied in July, at which time the commission suggested several remedies which it believed would permit operation of the line at a profit. The proposed changes, however, did not prevent monthly operating losses.

Dinner Event
Mrs. H. K. Bell of Garfield avenue entertained a few friends at dinner Friday. Covers were laid for 14. The afternoon was spent with games and social chat as the diversions.

The baby's first shoes should have flat, flexible soles, pliable tops and breathable toes.

Carney says he is familiar with the district in which the search for the bandits has centered, and knows the father of Irene Schroeder, said to be the gunman who killed Corporal Paul.

Waitresses in the restaurant where the "bandit family" ate poached eggs on toast in preparation for the robbery at the North Main street store say that the child in the party, whom they have identified as Donald Schroeder, chattered throughout the meal, bringing smiles to the faces of other patrons of the restaurant.

When Carney entered, Donald startled wide-eyed at the beard in which the aged man takes pride, and pointing at him, shouted gleefully, "You're Santa Claus, aren't you?"

The old man patted the child's head as he passed the table. Later, the younger man in the "bandit family" party turned to Carney, who was seated at an adjoining table, and casually talked with him about the weather, Carney says.

The "bandit family" was still eating breakfast when Carney rose to leave the restaurant, and the bandit who had talked with him courteously helped him on with his coat and handed him his cane, according to Carney.

Third Victim Of Bombing Outrage Dies In Hospital

Little Dorothy Hall, 4, Dies
From Severe Injuries Suffered In Bomb Blast

(International News Service)
SEAT PLEASANT, Md., Jan. 4.—
Death claimed another victim of the New Year's day Christmas package bomb outrage early today when four-year-old Dorothy Hall succumbed to her injuries at Sibley hospital, Washington. The death toll is now three.
Mrs. Naomi Hall Brady, 18-year-old expectant mother, for whom the package was intended; her 19-months-old brother, Samuel, and little Dorothy.

Mrs. Nora Hall, Naomi's mother, one eye gouged out and suffering from stomach injuries, is at Providence hospital in Washington and physicians fear for her life. Leslie Hall, 16-year-old son, who lost two fingers, is out of danger. The 86-year-old mother of Mrs. Hall, who has been discharged from the hospital, is said to be recovering from shock and slight injuries she suffered.

Baltimore police took a hand in the investigation of the outrage today on direct orders from Governor Ritchie.

Three Buried In Mass Of Wreckage

Workmen Sorting Paper On Fifth Floor Of Building Hurtled
To Ground

(BULLETIN)
NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Three men were buried in a mass of wreckage and two others were injured today when four floors of a five-story building at 182 South street collapsed.
Police and fire emergency squads rushed to the scene and efforts were begun at once to locate the buried men.

The building is occupied by W. A.
Rinaldi & Company. Tons of paper were stored in the structure.
Workmen were sorting the paper when the top floor gave way and its load crashed through to the main floor.

Young Men's Class Meets Friday Night

An interesting meeting of the Young Men's Bible Class of the First Congregational church was held Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Turner of Arlington avenue, with thirty members in attendance. One of the principal matters of business was the installation of officers, who are as follows: President, Sol Davies; vice president, John C. Williams; secretary, Carl Turner; treasurer, David P. Lewis; trustees and program committee, D. O. Davies, Ben Powell, Evan Hopkins; chorister,
Emrys Davies; assistant chorister,
Thomas D. Thomas; pianist, D. O.
Davies; reporter, Griff Thomas, and teacher, D. O. Davies.

After the business meeting, Evan Hopkins rendered a tenor solo. The pastor, Rev. Rhys T. Williams read a very interesting paper, covering in a masterly manner some of the issues that today confront the church. He was extended a hearty vote of thanks for his address.

William Wignall, of Maryland avenue, and Mr. Wignall, of Niagara falls, were guests of the class. The class sang several selections. A delicious lunch was served at the close of the meeting, the hostess being assisted by Mrs. Charles Henry and Earl Keifer. The next monthly meeting will be held at the home of Mr.
and Mrs. Daniel Richards, of Winslow avenue.

Shooting Of Corporal Paul Is Legal Case Of First Degree Murder

Since the brutal murder of Corporal Brady Paul on the Butler road by bandits, said to be Irene Schroeder, W. Glenn Dague and Tom Crawford, some question has been raised in the minds of many people as to which one could be charged with first degree murder and what charge would be brought against the other two.

The answer is that a charge of first degree murder can be placed against the three, and a jury would be entirely within the law to return a verdict of murder in the first degree, with the death penalty, for all three of them.

In the Party

If it is true that Irene Schroeder killed Corporal Paul, and if it is true that the men did not fire a shot at him, they are still guilty under the law because of the very fact that they were members of the party.

In Pennsylvania there have been cases where men have been put to death on a charge of first degree murder because of their being in a gang guilty of a felony in which murder followed the commission of the felony.

Murder done while in flight from the commission of a felony constitutes first degree murder for all the gang, although the matter of distance in the flight or the remoteness of the murder from the commission of the felony is for the jury to decide.

Supreme Court Decision

There is, among the opinions of the supreme court, a decision in the case against Doris, where a man was found guilty of murder in the first degree although he had not done any shooting, and at the time of the actual murder was some distance from the scene.

In handing down its decision the supreme court of Pennsylvania said: "Where the parties to such a common purpose show by their conduct and equipment an intention to use as much force as may be necessary to accomplish their purposes, and, in furtherance of the common design another is killed, all are guilty of the crime."

This seems to fit the three people who were in the gang at the time of the murder of Corporal Brady

ABE MARTIN On Getting Started In Life

FEELIN' OUT A SON

"We aim to make a dentist out of Halie, an' a lawyer out of Bud, an' paw wants Lester to be some kind of an engineer an' build water works in Czechoslovakia or subways in Chicago or water power dams in Tibet, specialise on big projects, you know. If he does become an engineer I'd like to see Tibet fer I've read so much about it," said Mrs. Joe Kite, speakin' o' so many boys flounderin' about an' undecided on what sort of careers to go into. The country is full o' people piddlin' along in trades an' professions that they jest drifted into rather'n not havin' any life work. A dandy big strappin' boy may start out in the mornin' to look fer work an' wind up behind the counter o' some hamburger stand, while a tall, delicate chap may find himself signed up with a foundry. Lots o' boys jest out o' college with ther allowances cut off jest desperat an' not infrequently they're found drivin' dressed poultry trucks, an' statistics show that out o' ever' seventy-four college graduates that become poultry truck drivers, thirty-one continue on through life. Some youngsters jest absolutely refuse to work till some employment that jest suits 'em shows up. Many boys an' girls 'll work at anything till they kin git dressed up, an' after that they're liable to drift anywhere. Some boys clean wall paper an' earn ther way through college, an' after they graduate an' battle with fate awhile they go back to wall paper cleanin'. Speakin' o' round pegs in square holes, ther's hundreds o' thousand's o' people who'er engaged in work they excel at, an' yet yearn to git into somethin' else. They're as miserable as the intellectual giant who's reduced to trimmin' hedges, or firin' furnaces, or starve. Squire Marsh Swallow is a lawyer an' kin write the best briefs in the state but neglects his trombone lessons when he wuz young has been the sorrow of his life. We all know lots of clerks, but we only know a handful of good ones, an' it's the same with doctors, lawyers, grocers,

Waterways Are Discussed By C. Of C. Board

Resolution Of Thanks Voted To Senator David A. Reed For His Interest

PLANS MADE FOR MEETING OF BODY

Members of the board of directors of the New Castle Chamber of Commerce discussed the proposed development of the Beaver, Mahoning and Shenango rivers for slackwater and navigation at the meeting held in The Castleton at noon Friday.

A resolution of thanks and appreciation to U. S. Senator D. A. Reed for his introduction into the senate of a bill authorizing the preliminary survey and tentative examination for this project, was passed. This bill is similar to one which was introduced in the house of representatives by Hon. J. Howard Swick on April 18, 1929, known as house bill 1363.

A very encouraging report from the special new industry committee, of which W. J. Offutt is chairman, on a prospective industry for New Castle was received.

It was decided to hold a meeting of membership in the very near future at which time present efforts of the chamber will be discussed, and its future activities laid before the body at large.

Those present at Friday's meeting were as follows: President W. F. Moody, Fred L. Rentz, W. W. Duff, Ira M. Ramsey, W. J. Offutt, R. J. Tully, L. G. Genkinger, Hon. J. A. Chambers, A. C. Hoyt, James K. Love, James M. Smith, T. H. Hartman and Secretary Alfred W. Chilton.
